STOLE 12 CLOCKS FROM B. & M. A STATE OF SIEGE AND ANARCHY IN ANNUAL REPORTS SUBMITTED

Two Men Broke Into Freight Car in Nashua—Local Autoist Fined $25

THE TURKISH CAPITAL

Sealer of Weights and Measures and Superintendent of Cemeteries Make Reports

Julius Hickory and Henry M. Purcell, both thought to be residents of Lowell, were arraigned in the police court this morning on a complaint charging them with the larceny of 12 clocks from the Boston and Maine railroad sometime yesterday. The men were apprehended in this city after notification of the theft from Nashua authorities, the clocks having been taken from a freight car in the New Hampshire city.

According to the story of the police, the two men are alleged to have broken into a freight car in Nashua sometime yesterday and to have taken therefrom a dozen clocks. They then found that they had considerable time on their hands and yet about disposing of some of it until they were arrested. Several of the clocks were recovered. The time pieces were valued at approximately $2.50 each and were of medium size.

In court this morning the defendants pleaded guilty and their trial was continued until next Wednesday, January 25.

Paid $25 For Not Showing License

John J. Henry was in court today on a charge of refusing to show his license to operate an automobile, when requested to do so by an officer. He was represented by Attorney J. Joseph O'Connor.

The officer, Michael Sullivan, testified that he had ordered the man to show his license and that he had dispatched a boy to his home for it. After five or six minutes, the boy did not return and the man got into the machine, with which he was delivering ice cream, and drove away. Thomas B. Sullivan who happened to be nearby at the time of the occurrence, testified to the sending of the boy after the license and to the man's driving away before the arrival of the lad.

Judge Burleigh found the man guilty and imposed a fine of $25.

A Family Mix-Up

It was alleged that Joseph Fritz assaulted his sister because she was marrying a man whom he did not like and for that reason he greeted the judge in the police court room this morning. He pleaded not guilty and during the testimony, considerable was said about a sum of $100, which the defendant said the plaintiff's husband owed him. The defendant also denied striking his sister and said that her husband called him vile names when he went to the house. He was found guilty and paid a fine of $12.

The Chorus

There was the customary number of drunken offenders today. Frank J. Fallon was the first to have his name called and in response he withdrew the appeal which he had made in a hasty moment yesterday morning. He will serve the sentence of three months in jail.

Louis Lambert was sentenced to serve three months in jail for an offense of drunkenness. Mary A. Lessard got one month and John E. Donovan will reside for a time at the state farm at Bridgewater. James Larkin paid a fine of $5 and there were a number of two dollar contributions for first offenses.

For Neglect of Wife

James F. Hesslin was given a suspended sentence of four months in the house of correction for neglecting to provide for the support of his wife. He will be observed for signs of improvement during the coming month.

Young Turks Searching Houses and Confiscating Documents---War Vessels Dispatched to Scene

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Constantinople is practically in a state of siege and terror reigns, according to reports received by the peace delegates representing the Balkan allies. From the same source it is reported that the young Turks, fearing that the reins of power may again slip from their hands, are arresting their adversaries in the Turkish capital right and left and are searching houses and clubs and confiscating documents, hoping in this way to break up the organization of the opposition.

The allies express the opinion that under these circumstances any excess may be expected.

With this prospect in view the European powers have decided to send war vessels to reinforce the ordinary guardships stationed at Constantinople. Italy, especially, is alarmed over the return to power of the young Turks who were inexorable during the Lybian war.

and is now the head of the committee of union and progress as an irreconcilable. The United States ambassador at Constantinople, William Rockhill, during the negotiations attempted by him in conjunction with Thomas J. O'Brien, United States ambassador at Rome for the conclusion of peace between Italy and Turkey, described Djavid Bey, who was then Turkish minister of finance and is now the head of the committee of union and progress as an irreconcilable. Djavid Bey declared that Turkey would fight in Tripoli as long as she had a soldier left.

The position of the 50,000 residents of Turkey is now regarded as so precarious that Italy has dispatched to Constantinople the cruisers San Marco

The sealer of weights and measures, John W. Stott, and the superintendent of cemeteries, Thomas Duckworth, have submitted their annual reports to Commissioner Lawrence Cummings. The report of the sealer of weights and measures gives a complete inventory of the equipment of the department. The report of the work done during the year is as follows:

Track, wagon and dormant scales over 5000 pounds capacity: Tested, 32; sealed, 31; adjusted, 3; condemned, 1.

Wagon, dormant and platform scales under 5000 pounds capacity: Tested, 309; sealed, 635; adjusted, 123; condemned, 44.

Computing scales: Tested, 33; sealed, 290; condemned, 19.

Spring balance scales: Tested, 765; sealed, 555; adjusted, 50; condemned, 150.

Counterscales: Tested, 741; sealed, 672; adjusted, 19; condemned, 19.

Cotton beams and overhead track beam scales: Tested, 55; sealed, 130; condemned, 139.

Weights: Tested, 5933; sealed, 5629; adjusted, 1239; condemned, 15.

Dry measures: Tested, 337; sealed, 339; condemned, 18.

Liquid measures: Tested, 1277; sealed, 1156; condemned, 71.

Oil measures: Tested, 2429; sealed, 2263; condemned, 175; sealed by maker, 1110; inspected on wagons, 240; condemned, 25.

Yard sticks: Tested, 291; sealed, 256; condemned, 25.

Reviewing coal in transit: London, 22; ice cream measures, 12; barrels tested with five-gallon standard measures, 57.

The expenditures of the department for the year amounted to $373.52. The fees collected and paid to the city treasurer were $33.58. The charges for work done, for which bills were sent to the city treasurer for collection were $215.81. This makes a total of $555.66. The salary of the sealer is $1200, and the wages of the deputy sealer are $15 weekly.

In concluding his report, Mr. Stott says: "By comparison you will see that the labor and receipts of this department have increased every year for the past five years, or since the present system was established, in the year 1910, and the labor has made a very material increase, inasmuch as the mills have established the law of having their scales examined and sealed every three months, whereas formerly they were sealed once a year.

"The stores and all kinds of business using scales and measures we find in better condition than ever before.

"We have condemned and removed many of the old scales formerly used, and we continue to remove such scales as in our judgment cannot be repaired and made to conform with the law. The increase in labor means additional help in order to keep up the work of the department, in the very near future."

Report of Cemeteries

The report of the superintendent of cemeteries is as follows: Lawrence Cummings, Commissioner of Public Property.

Dear Sir:

I beg to submit an account of the work performed by the cemeteries department during the year 1912.

My object has been to please all lot owners and to keep the cemeteries clean and inviting at all times.

OVERCOME BY GAS

Accidental Turning on of Gas Jet Nearly Caused the Death of Frank Robello of Fall River

FALL RIVER, Jan. 25.—Overcome by illuminating gas in his tenement at 27 Langley street yesterday, Frank Robello was revived by the police and physicians and is now under treatment at the City hospital. His condition is very serious and the outcome cannot be definitely determined for a while.

Other tenants in the block heard Robello moving about his rooms at 4 o'clock. About 8:15 Joseph Lewis, a boy, detected the odor of gas and notified a co-tenant, Joseph Fredon. The boy then summoned Peter Barrett and Roger Costa, who were walking along the street. The men forced an entrance and found Robello unconscious in a room adjoining that in which the gas cock was partially turned on.

The investigation made by the authorities convinced them that the turning on of the gas was accidental.

Kills Guard and Self in Car

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 25.—Three revolver shots fired in quick succession awakened the drowsy passengers in the smoking car on the Northwestern train from Prairie du Chien arriving in Milwaukee yesterday morning. Springing to their feet the occupants of the car saw two men settle back dead in their seats.

A maniac had killed his guard and himself. The guard was Joseph Budde, 45 years old, of Mankato, Minn., and the crazy man was Alexander J. Schutte, 35 years old, of Mankato, whom Budde was bringing to the state mental hospital in this city. Schutte had shown signs of mental trouble and his friends had engaged Budde to take him to the sanitarium. It is believed an argument over the choice of a seat caused Schutte's murderous outbreak.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

HOLD SECOND SESSION

Of St. Patrick's Day Convention

IN A. O. H. HALL, TOMORROW AFTERNOON

New Plans to Be Presented and Reports of the Various Committees Will Be Heard at This Meeting

The second session of the delegates from the Irish Catholic societies of the city to the convention to make arrangements for the observance of St. Patrick's day will be called to order tomorrow afternoon at half past two o'clock in Hibernian hall, and to all events the final arrangements for the celebration of the day will be completed at this meeting. Chief Marshal James McManis, who is also chairman of the convention, will preside and he is expected to make an interesting report. The committees have been very active and have plans to present which will doubtless make the celebration of St. Patrick's day a memorable one. A report will also be submitted by the committee on programs, while Delegate McDermott of the Meagher Guards will advance a proposition for the appointment of a rallying committee to stimulate interest in the parade.

There were several societies which were not represented at the first meeting in this regard two weeks ago and these, it is expected, will send members to the convention tomorrow. Chief Marshal McManis has taken hold of the work assigned to him in a very earnest manner and wishes to urge upon all the necessity of being present at the very important session which is scheduled to take place in Hibernian hall tomorrow afternoon.

BODY NOT YET RECOVERED

George Bolavert Still Lies at the Bottom of Pawtucket Canal—Under-inker Continues Search

The body of George Bolavert, the young man who committed suicide by drowning in the Pawtucket canal yesterday afternoon, has not as yet been found, despite the fact that Undertaker Albert's men worked all night, grappling the canal.

The locks and canals officials were to empty the canal last night, but on account of some of the mills working, this was impossible, but this afternoon the water is to be lowered and it is expected the body will be found. This morning Mr. Albert's men were still at work, and besides there was a crew of boys who were grappling with improvised irons, but without success.

500 EXTRA COPS CALLED BUDGET FOR THE YEAR

Former Lowell Woman

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—A detail of 500 extra police was distributed in the hotel district today in an effort to check further rioting of striking waiters. Special officers are assisting the uniformed force and the sheriff is ready to swear in a sufficient number of deputies to cope with the situation.

With these precautions taken the hotelmen's association said today that the idea of calling on the governor for the National guard had been abandoned.

Officers of the International Hotelworkers' union, estimated this morning that 400 waiters and kitchen helpers were out. A mass meeting was called for noon at which it was hoped to augment the numbers of strikers.

The first clash of the day occurred at the Hotel Cadillac, where 50 employees who had walked out yesterday attempted to storm the dining-room. The police arrested a head waiter in command of the strikers and the crowd dispersed without carrying out their design.

UNITED IRISH LEAGUE

Meets to Arrange For the Lecture by Lawyer O'Keefe of Chicago on March 16 Next

There will be an important meeting of the United Irish League in the hall, 32 Middle street, Sunday evening, to make arrangements for the lecture by P. J. O'Keefe, Esq., of Chicago on Sunday evening, March 16. Mr. O'Keefe has consented to come to Lowell in aid of the Irish cause and as he is one of the leading orators of the country, his discourse will doubtless attract a large audience to Associate hall.

All the old members and others who are interested in the cause are invited to attend this meeting.

Died of Injuries in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Hestia Flynn, who was horribly burned at her home here Thursday morning, died yesterday in the Municipal hospital. While blowing on some embers to hasten the flame in her stove her clothing caught fire last Thursday and she was badly burned about the face, hands and upper portion of her body.

The deceased was about 35 years of age and was the widow of the late William Flynn, who died about a year ago in Lowell.

SCHOOL YEAR SHORTENED

Many Families Have Moved Away From Phillips, Me., Hence the Action of the Board

PHILLIPS, Me., Jan. 25.—The school board has voted to shorten the year in the common schools three weeks, because of lack of funds, giving five weeks' vacation between the spring and summer terms instead of two. The high school will continue uninterrupted, barring the week that has already been lost when the schools were closed because of scarlet fever in town.

The cause of the financial shortage is the great decrease in the number of children since the mills closed and the moving away of many families, the amount of the school fund having been reduced about $500 from these causes the present year.

The year is shortened both in the graded schools in the village and in the country district schools.

Dooley Principal For Three Years

At the special session of the Fall River school committee yesterday, at which William H. Dooley of Lowell was elected head master of the new Technical High school, it was also agreed upon that his appointment be for three years.

LEEVE BROKE FLOODING FARMS

VICKSBURG, Miss., Jan. 25.—The Beulah levee on the east side of the Mississippi river near Greenville, Miss., broke, and flood waters are pouring over some of the finest farming land in this section. The crevasse resulted from a settling of the foundation in the new levee.

1500 MEN TRIED TO CHECK FLOOD

VICKSBURG, Jan. 25.—Fifteen hundred men including several hundred Mississippi convicts had been working day and night for the last week in an attempt to rebuild the levee which was carried away by last spring's flood. Last night the new levee was two feet above the water stage but the river was rising rapidly and when the new foundation settled today the big embankment broke.

It is not believed possible to close the crevasse and the government and state levee workers will try to save frontage along Lake Jefferson where the increasing floods are threatening.

PORTRAIT OF REV. DR. GREENE

REV. J. M. GREENE, D. D.

Presented to Rogers Hall School
by Board of Trustees—Mrs. M.
E. Wood the Artist

A portrait of Rev. John M. Greene, D. D., was unveiled at Rogers Hall school yesterday afternoon. The picture was presented to the school by the board of trustees. Dr. Greene was the first president of the board of trustees and at the last annual meeting the board voted to secure an oil portrait of Dr. Greene. The portrait is the work of Mrs. Mary E. Wood and is a splendid likeness of Dr. Greene. Miss S. P. H. Robbins, for the committee, made the presentation address, and the unveiling was by Miss Ruth Greene, a granddaughter of Dr. Greene and a pupil of the school. The framing of the portrait was not left to inexperienced hands and the frame, which was made by Mr. Hermann D. Murphy, is worthy of the picture.

In presenting the portrait, Miss Robbins said:

"When Miss Elizabeth Rogers conceived the idea of establishing a school for girls in this house and on those grounds, she applied for assistance and advice to the man who had been the guiding spirit in the founding of another educational institution, Smith college at Northampton. He was interested at once and promised to aid, which in Dr. Greene's case meant every effort of which he was capable, for his success. The work of planning and organizing was one involving great responsibility, thought and labor. Differences were met and overcome, differences of views were met and were reconciled. Most of this early work was done by Dr. Greene single handed. Later he invited others to cooperate with him, and when the school was opened he had Mrs. Underhill's invaluable aid, her brilliant mind, fine scholarship, combined with executive ability of a very high order, gave him the assistance he needed and shaped the course of Miss Rogers' project to the success that the school has since achieved. It goes without saying that intelligence and scholarship were needed in this work, and Dr. Greene had these and gave of them freely; but of more worth still, we think, was the influence of his high character and his rare consecration to the service of God and man. And yet we are not here to do him honor, nor to offer a memorial, for it is we who have been honored by our association with him; and this school is a memorial to him as well as to Miss Rogers. As long as Rogers Hall stands, tradition will carry down and repeat the record of Dr. Greene's splendid service in its behalf. Our present object is to do what tradition cannot do, for while future attendants here will know what Dr. Greene was and what he did for this school, they will be denied the great privilege which has been ours, of knowing him and looking upon his face, a face so full of strength and gentleness, of purity and refinement, and above all of goodness, that even on canvas it cannot fail to be an inspiration to all who come to the school. In that belief, your committee takes great pleasure in delivering to you the portrait of the Rev. Dr. John M. Greene, a man who has loved and labored for this school beyond our words to measure and who still regards it with tender affection and unabated interest. May he long be spared to us."

Rev. A. C. Ferrin, speaking for the trustees said:

"To me Dr. Greene stands for three things—preacher, educator, lover of life. What the trustees would have the portrait do for this school, is to exert the same influence which he has endeavored and has exerted in the past years—the influence of a Christian atmosphere. May this be the effect of a beautiful portrait of a beautiful face and character."

Dr. Greene was not present, but Mr. Ferrin read a letter from him to the principal of the school, which was in part as follows:

"Your little card, notifying me of the unveiling of the portrait, came in due time. Were it possible I should like to be present and enjoy the fun and have a part in it; but this mild weather makes me so weak that I do not dare undertake the journey. I shall be present in spirit, though not in body. Mrs. Wood has done her part well. I am sure of that. Many have seen the portrait here and have complimented it highly. I feel highly honored in having it hung in the Rogers home, which is so dear to me. That the unveiling of the portrait may be a pleasant occasion to all is my sincere wish."

LOCKOUT IS THREATENED

By 12,000 Garment Workers in Rochester, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A lockout of 12,000 garment workers on Monday is threatened by the manufacturers of the city, who have been combating a strike that has been growing for several weeks until today more than half of the shop-hands are idle. The clothing industry is one of the largest in Rochester, the weekly output aggregating $22,000,000. The unionizing of the workers is of recent date, and the new chest of the United Garment Workers' Union is sent for the purpose of meeting drafts for strike benefits.

One of the most serious obstacles to the striking of the workers is the demand of the manufacturers for recognition of the union, which the employers decline to do without conceding other questions at issue are demands for increased wages and better shop conditions.

FIVE GOVERNORS IN BOSTON

Discuss Transportation Problems With Governor Foss at Luncheon Today

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Transportation problems of New England were considered by five governors of these states at a luncheon given by Governor Foss today. Governor Haines of Maine because of illness was not able to be present.

The executives ate and talked behind closed doors but it was understood they would take up, among other matters, the discontinuance of the construction of the Southern New England Railroad Co.'s lines to Boston and Providence.

It has been charged and denied that the work was stopped because of an agreement between the Grand Trunk New England, and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. The governors also had before them the suggestions of the host, that a solution of their difficulties might be possible through the creation of a New England transportation committee and state representations on railroad directorates.

The governors had little comment to make on the plan prior to the opening of the conference.

Those present were Samuel E. Felker of New Hampshire, Allen M. Fletcher of Vermont, Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island and Simeon E. Baldwin of Connecticut.

LIBERALS IN CUBA

Show Disposition to be More Pacific as They Fear Intervention by United States

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 25.—A great liberal meeting was held here last night under the chairmanship of Vice President Alfredo Zayas, who was defeated at the recent election for the presidency. The gathering was marked by an unexpected moderation of tone. The orators deprecated any attempt to revolt an expressed wish to leave the question of the validity of the elections to the decision of the supreme court. Col. Orestes Ferrera, while insisting that the liberals had been deceived in the elections, declared that any Cuban government was preferable to an American government which would be the result of a revolution.

This attitude on the part of the opposition taken together with the fact that the elections in the ownership of Arizona were conducted without disorder probably will tend to dissipate the recent persistent and alarming rumors of an impending revolution.

THE AVIATION SOCIAL

Will be Held at Y. W. C. A.

This Evening

Tonight comes the Aviation social at the Y. W. C. A. and all members of the association are invited to hear the final report of the aviators and enjoy the stunts of the separate teams. The social committee under Mrs. G. D. Farley will provide a program of entertainment, consisting of solos by Miss Ruth Hodge, readings by Miss Dorothy Moody, and violin selections by Miss Dorothy Farley.

Mrs. Willis Hatch, the head of the Curtis Reds, is confident of winning the meet, but the Blue Wrights under Miss J. H. Woodie are creeping up every hour. The gymnasium team which has been delayed in its work by other activities in that department has begun to stir itself and will be heard from this evening. So far the Foreign club team leads with a total of thirty-eight members. Foreigners usually do set a fast pace in aviation. The second highest is the Home team on the blue side with a total of thirty-four. The Pageant team under Miss Mills is lying low, ready for a quick start this evening that will bring the blue biplane well up in the air.

To date the Reds stand 133, the Blues 104.

The vesper service will be of an unusual order Sunday, as it will consist largely of music. Mrs. Eugene Russell and the other members of the Paige Street Baptist church choir will render the Festival De Deum by Buck; "Even Me" by Warren; "Callest Thou Thus, O Master" composed by Macy; and "Lord, With Glorious Light" by Schaefer. One of the most talented violinists of Lowell, Miss Kathleen Wright, will play. Miss Ola Sargent will be the pianist.

TERRY BITTERLY SCORED

In the Trial of Alleged Woman Forger

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—William C. Terry, aged 40 years, whose name, it is charged, was forged to checks uttered by Mrs. Abbie L. Moulton of 35 Fairmount street, and who yesterday testified as a witness in the case against her, was arrested last night by Special Officer Lyons of the Back Bay station. He is charged with a statutory offense, committed Dec. 7 of last year.

Terry was found by the officer at his home in South Boston and taken to the station, where he was booked. He refused to talk to the officers regarding the case. Terry, it is said, refused to answer certain questions put to him in court yesterday, which led to a warrant being asked for.

Terry was bitterly scored at the trial of the woman yesterday afternoon, when the municipal court. She is charged with uttering forged checks. Frank Keizer, counsel for the young woman, denounced Terry, declaring that he induced Mrs. Moulton to come to Boston and the young woman herself pointed an accusing finger at the witness.

Mrs. Moulton was arrested last Saturday evening and following a trial on Monday was committed to the Women's reformatory at Sherborn. She appeared and later Judge Bennett set aside the finding and ordered that she be called for trial again yesterday. Meanwhile an additional charge of uttering a forged check was placed against her by Special Officer Carey of Division 2. It is charged that she signed Terry's name to the checks.

Two checks which she passed on large downtown business houses were for $50 and a third was for $25. Judge Bennett will give his decision in the case this morning. Mrs. Moulton was held in $500 and was taken to the Charles street jail at the close of the proceedings yesterday. The trial occupied the greater part of the afternoon and was largely attended.

In the direct examination Terry did not have much to say. He said that he had not seen the checks that he had never signed them and that he had never signed them. Upon cross-examination he said that he had been married twice and that his first wife divorced him. He has two sons. He said he was 40 years old and was 18 years when he was first married.

He said that he met Abbie Moulton at Rumford, Me., six years ago and also said that he knew she had been in Sherborn, but denied that he had written to her while she was there and suggested meeting her at a railroad station in this city. He did not admit meeting her at a steamship dock in this city when she came here from Maine last September.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Jan. 25.—Dr. Eben Burt Parsons, for 21 years, prior to 1905, secretary to the Williams college faculty and registrar of the college, died yesterday morning at his home in College place.

WAS GIVEN SIX MONTHS

Lowell Man Reckless

With Automobile

In the superior criminal court at East Cambridge, yesterday, James H. Horsfall of this city was sentenced to six months in the Lowell jail by Judge Chase.

Horsfall was arraigned a year ago on a charge of manslaughter in having caused the death, on Nov. 11, 1911, in Wilmington, of Miss Ruth Kiltredge. He was subsequently indicted by a grand jury on three counts: Manslaughter, reckless operating and operating an automobile while intoxicated. He was also indicted on two counts of going away after damaging property and persons. On the charge of manslaughter, the jury disagreed. On the charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated he was found not guilty. He was found guilty, however, of reckless operating and going away after damaging property and persons. At the trial a year ago Horsfall was given a six months' sentence and fined $200. The case was taken to the supreme court. The court overruled the verdict of guilty on the two counts of going away after damaging property and persons.

HEARING JAN. 30

Commission Will Give It on Petition for Trolley Freight Franchise in Clinton

CLINTON, Jan. 25.—The selectmen received notice yesterday afternoon that the state railroad commissioners will give a hearing in Boston Jan. 30 on the petition of the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway company for a trolley freight franchise in this town. Cleveland Morse, chairman of the selectmen, said he expected the company would be given the desired franchise by the state commission. A year ago a petition was filed with the selectmen and a hearing was given. At that time there was no marked opposition to the company getting what it desired, but there was a general expression of opinion that in return the company should give the town something in the way of better service or new lines into the suburbs, notably a line to the Clinton-Lancaster driving park. The selectmen took no formal action on the matter after the hearing.

Lancaster, Boylston and Berlin have granted franchises.

Mrs. Foley to be Turned Down
BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Word reached City Hall yesterday that the appointment of Mrs. Foley to the position of well-known suffragist, to the board of children's institutions trustees, is to be turned down by the civil service commission.

While the civil service commission is given 30 days under the law to approve or reject an appointment of the mayor, the commission has already used up nearly all of the time allowed in this case. There are but four more week days left in which the civil service commission may act on Mrs. Foley's appointment.

Favors Uniting Departments

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The committee on ordinances of the city council yesterday afternoon voted to report "ought to pass" on an ordinance consolidating into a department of parks and recreation the present departments known as park, bath, public grounds and music.

The new department will be governed by a commission of three members, two of whom will serve without pay, and the chairman will receive $7500 a year. The chairman, who must be a landscape engineer or architect, will be appointed by the mayor subject to approval of the civil service commission. His term will be fixed by the mayor.

WILSON GOES SHOPPING

President Elect in New York for Week End

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—To obtain rest and diversion from the strain of his official duties, President-elect Wilson came to New York for the week-end yesterday. He went shopping with Mrs. Wilson most of the afternoon and visited a half dozen stores without being generally recognized.

Last night the governor was the guest of a close friend at the theatre. He had no political engagements, he said.

It is very probable that the president-elect will visit the Metropolis every week-end before his inauguration, as his friends have cautioned him against overwork. Earlier in the day the governor had gone to Philadelphia to visit a dentist. He left there for New York at noon and will not be back in his office at the state house before Monday.

Although Governor and Mrs. Wilson escaped general recognition during their shopping tour, an incident at the very start indicated that their hopes in this respect might not be realized. The governor had agreed to meet Mrs. Wilson on an upper floor of one of the big stores and as he stepped out of the elevator and walked to the spot where she was waiting, some one recognized the president-elect.

There was an immediate flutter among the store employees, who flocked from all sides and surrounded the couple. An impromptu reception followed, a white scarf, a cigar, a young woman was greeted by the governor and his wife.

The playhouse which Governor Wilson attended last night, was a very small one, and he was speedily recognized as he took his seat in the audience. In his honor the orchestra played the "Star Spangled Banner." The first time this national air has greeted him in his visits to theatres since his election to the presidency.

PARK STREET DAMAGE $3000

Troublesome Fire in Warren Building, in Which Hoseman is Rescued From Lightwell

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Fire in the basement and street floor of the Warren building, 1A, 2 and 3 Park street, near the Park street church, did damage to the extent of $3000 yesterday morning. Hoseman Kenneth of engine 26 was considerably shaken up by jumping in the dark into a light well 15 feet deep. He lay at the bottom for some time and was nearly overcome by smoke when discovered by Chief Mullen and rescued. He was able later to resume work with his company.

The Boston Cooperative Flower Market, which occupies the basement and that portion of the street floor numbered 1A, suffered the greatest damage. The store at No. 2, occupied by Charles Skinner, dealer in precious stones, was also considerably damaged. The fire crept under the main entrance of the building at 2A, and it was necessary to rip up a section of the flooring.

CONSIDER 30-ROOM SCHOOL

School Board and Aldermen Take Up Matter at Haverhill—Appropriation of $250,000 is Sought

HAVERHILL, Jan. 25.—The municipal council and school board held a conference yesterday, when the question of a site for a $250,000 schoolhouse with 30 rooms in ward 5 was discussed. The school board, which was represented by Dr. John F. Croston, Judge O. J. Carleton and H. F. Lewis, favored the site of the school at the corner of the Tilton property, near Currier square, providing it could be purchased at a reasonable price. Alderman Bartlett suggested additions to the school building, but the school board rejected the idea.

Mayor Moulton pointed out that under the amended city charter the school board has the sole right to select the location of sites and plans for new schoolhouses and that the municipal council cannot act without the approval of the school board. It was voted to permit Mayor Moulton to appoint a committee to investigate and report the price at which the Tilton property may be bought.

Lake Potanipo, Usually a Source for a Big Boston Supply, Refuses to Show a Real Freeze

MILFORD, N. H., Jan. 25.—Ice company officials are much worried over the lack of ice on Lake Potanipo, Brookline, N. H. On the shores of this lake there is storage for 150,000,000 pounds of ice, which throughout the winter has been the source of the big cream with rare exceptions has been harvested in January.

At present there is less than five inches of ice. Negotiations have been made with owners of lakes and ice-houses in the northern part of New England for a supply in case the freeze here does not materialize.

REGULATIONS FOR LENT

Precepts for Catholics—Season Begins Feb. 5

Rev. James P. E. O'Connell, the chancellor of the archdiocese, has made public the regulations for Lent, which begin on Feb. 5, or one week from Wednesday.

The rules and regulations governing the Catholic people during the holy season are set forth as follows: "All the days of Lent, except Sundays, are fast days of obligation. Those only are bound to fast, however, who are over 21 years old and not of advanced age, no one in any case being bound to fast who is 60 years old. The following persons are also exempt from fasting: The sick and the convalescent, women during pregnancy and while nursing infants; those to whom fasting would cause grave injury to health, or produce such illness or exhaustion as would interfere with their daily duties, and those whose occupations are of a very laborious and exhausting nature. Those who doubt whether they are excused or not should consult with their confessor.

On fast days those under the law are allowed but one full meal and a light supper. "Those whose habit is to take dinner in the evening are allowed a slight repast in the middle of the day. In all cases the breakfast should not be a meal, but should consist simply of a cup of coffee, chocolate or some other drink, with a small portion of bread.

"Though the fast days of Lent are also days of abstinence, by virtue of apostolic indulgence, even those who are obliged to fast, may use flesh meat once a day on Mondays, Thursdays and Saturdays, except the second and last Saturday; those not obliged to fast may eat meat more than once on these days, but by special privilege granted by the Holy See, working men and all the members of their families who are keeping the fast, may eat meat once a day on all the days of Lent, save Friday, Ash Wednesday and Wednesday and Saturday of Holy Week; those of the family who are not obliged to fast may eat meat more than once a day on any day when the use of meat is at all permitted.

"The use of flesh meat and fish at the same meal is forbidden to all persons during Lent, even on Sundays.

"Those who are in some way or other dispensed from fasting or abstinence during Lent must remember that they are all the more strictly bound to mortify and deny themselves in some other way. Abstinence from all intoxicating drinks in honor of the sacred thirst of our Lord is especially commended.

"The usual Lenten devotions will be provided in all the churches of the diocese, and the faithful should be reminded that they should endeavor by earnest prayer, heartfelt contrition and the worthy receiving of the sacraments to profit by the special graces of the holy season.

WATER DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Fire Causes Large Loss in the Home of Michael Cashman on Woodland Street, Newburyport

NEWBURYPORT, Jan. 25.—A fire at the home of Michael Cashman on Woodland street last evening resulted in a heavy damage before it was extinguished, although the loss from the fire itself was small.

The blaze started in a blind attic and a large amount of water was poured into the building. The house was built by the late Mayor George L. Jackson about 40 years ago and was one of the finest residences at the North End of the city.

Curved is the Line of Beauty -- Even In Tailored Wear Now -- Side Seams Eliminated In French Tailored Models -- Spring Colors Borrowed From the Far East.

THE only tailored thing about the now tailored suits for spring, is their pressing. Cut and lines are as far removed from the popular conception of the word "tailored" which suggests a certain masculine trimness and simplicity, as are the garments of the Orient from the business suit of the modern man. Everything is draped, swathed, wound around the figure; and where this effect is not conveyed by the drape of the material it is suggested by the cut of the garment. For example, few of the new coats show regulation side seams, running down under the arm, to the hip. Sometimes the back of the garment laps over and forms a corset or belt in front as in a very smart suit of mixed mohair and worsted yarns by Drecolli; and sometimes the fronts of the coat are carried around to lap over the back panel, as in an equally smart suit of white colored lansdowne by Callot Secur. And, by the way, lansdowne is the particular favorite of Paris at the moment. This material is woven of silk and worsted threads and has been revived because of its perfect draping qualities combined with a great distinction of texture. It is lighter than worsted yet has a newer effect than the glistening charmeuse of which fashion has wearied. Lansdowne comes in a multitude of the beautiful new Eastern colorings--rich and glowing though subdued shades that are the rage this season, together with all other Eastern effects.

Tailoring the New "Bow-Figure."
This new spring tailored wear is essentially feminine. It drapes and swatches the natural figure in an almost classic manner, and the coat and skirt costume which shows a really straight line anywhere is a failure. Curved is the line of beauty now. The straight-front figure has passed and the bow-figure is the ideal of the moment. Even tailored wear must conform to this new figure ideal and all lines must be subtle, soft and flowing even as the lines of the natural figure--the feminine figure that is soft and flowing. Of course, this new figure effect is not entirely owing to the corsetless, though the softly built and almost boneless corset does a good deal to accomplish the effect; but women accentuate the bow-figure by the way they stand, these days, and unless one has learned the trick of flexing the knees and throwing the figure into a relaxed curve of grace, it will be folly to pay a hundred or two hundred dollars for a new spring tailored suit built to emphasize the fashionable bow effect.

A Thick Neck Another New Fashion Whim.

The bunched look about the neck is quite in line with the frenzy just now for Oriental and Eastern effects and Madame's throat promises to be rather uncomfortably swathed this spring--for the warm American climate. Some of the new Russian blouse suits for spring wear have turned down collars in place of the high, fitted collarettes or bands of the winter; but the collar is usually mounted on a tall band so that it suggests a swathed neck at the back, even when the front opens low on the throat. This thick neck idea is illustrated in the model of prune mohair with a pleated skirt and braided coat. The faithful design of this coat is expressive of some of the rather freakish effects now being put out by the couturiers under the name of "tailored spring suits." As may be seen, this Bernard suit, though undoubtedly very chic and up-to-the-minute in style, is anything but suggestive of tailored wear in the ordinary acceptance of the term. The finely side pleated skirt is confined under a four-inch hem of the material which keeps the pleats from being out at the foot, each pleat, moreover, being stitched all the way down and very flatly pressed. The coat has no side seams, back and front sections lapping under a buttoned lap over side panels of pleating, stitched to within an inch of the lower edge where the pleats fall free. The sleeves are of side pleated mohair part of the way up, with caps of prune colored satin attached just above the elbow. These satin sleeve-tops are part of a deep satin yoke, the front and back panels of the coat being slipped loosely over this undercoat of satin and pleating. The edges of the panels are finished with braiding. Note, also, the high collar of the coat, with the inner collar of black satin, giving the fashionable thick look at the neck. This skirt, though long as the prevailing mode demands, allows a glimpse of the patent leather buttoned walking boot.

The hat worn with this prune colored mohair costume is also a French model and is in the new aeroplane effect--with a feather propeller at the rear. Another prune colored tailleur has an unmistakable flounce on the skirt, set above a hem of equal depth, so that two flounces are suggested. Flounces are very much the fad, it seems, though as yet they have been used mostly on the thin frocks of embroidery and lingerie fabrics intended for Southland wear. That the flounce is invading the realm of tailored wear is proved by this French suit of prune color which is accompanied by a prune hem hat trimmed with a clustered flower ornament in prune and lilac shades. The side seams of the coat are hidden under braided motifs which follow the extravagantly fashionable Moorish arch pattern; and the coat has a collar of pale lilac moire silk embroidered in prune color and opening over a jabot of cream lace. The two-toned parasol matches hat and suit, and boots of patent leather with buttoned tops of prune cloth accompany the costume.

Coats In Many Lengths.

That not all the couturiers are of a single mind in respect to coat lengths is proved by spring tailored wear from

Paris. At one end of the list is Paquin, insisting upon three-quarter coats, belted at the waistline and at the other Callot Secur's determinedly putting out coquettish little affairs falling short of the hip by several inches. Between and between are coats of every length; and it will be noted that no two models pictured on today's page show coats of exactly the same length. Shortest, perhaps, is the attractive little coat of the black and white striped suit--an American tailor's inspiration, and a model that has already achieved popularity with those providing outfits for the South.

Fabric Combinations As Modish As Ever.

Again this spring are silk materials used with worsted stuffs, and all sorts of materials draped together in a wonderfully pleasing harmony when one considers the varieties of colors and weaves thus mixed up. Sometimes a shaped tunic over a skirt of contrasting material suggests the fashionable draped effect, though no actual drapery is introduced. This is the case in a braided tailleur which shows a coat and shaped tunic of olive brown cloth over a skirt of lansdowne. The skirt is extremely soft and clings about the feet, just showing the buttoned boot beneath; and the tunic is closely cut to the line of the soft lansdowne skirt and is heavily weighted to keep it in place. The cut-away coat is braided in a chevron design which obliterates the side seams and above oddly shaped revers of velvet--a squarely cut collar of St. Gail embroidery in the new lace effect. Many tailored coats have collars or jabots of this new lace embroidery which is just now more distinctive than lace itself.

Slot seams are used as a decorative motif on the suit of light brownish gray ratine weave which is the most conventionally "tailormade" type pictured today. The skirt of this suit has a slot seam down the center front and slot seams outline a pannier motif over the hips. The side seams of the coat are hidden under square tabliers which overlap and are trimmed with buttons and loops. The vest at the front of this coat is particularly interesting as a new spring feature, and the oddly shaped revers will also attract attention from those who watch for new style ideas. A straw hat with two white quills shooting backward matches the suit, and the boots are buttoned walking boots with dull calf tops on ramps of patent leather.

The Russian Blouse A Favored Model.

Every so often the Russian blouse, which is really the most graceful coat model womankind can put on, makes its appearance at the forefront of fashion--disappearing usually rather speedily, for Russian blouses are so easy to make up smartly at home, because of the belt which covers such a multitude of defects in the way of fit, that this style soon becomes too popular and is abandoned by the woman who dresses in exclusive style. Just now the Russian blouse is in one

COTILLION FAVORS for the Valentine Dance

DOWN through the years the pretty customs and traditions of St. Valentine, his day, have descended and the modern maid experiences just as much pleasure at the receipt of a Valentine message from "Him" as did her great-grandmamma from a great grand "Him" of her time. But the modern maid's Valentine message takes quite a different form from the lace papered, versaled, offering which made her great-grandmamma's heart go pit-a-pat under its little, short-waisted bodice. It is likely to be a box of sweets, a cluster of violets, a fan, even a bit of jewelry, but whatever its outward form, in spirit it will have the same sentimental--and priceless value--to two people and to them it will be a Valentine, with all that the magic name implies.

In almost every community now a Valentine Dance takes place on, before, or immediately after the important Day of True Lovers, and the cotillion following such a dance is the opportunity for the presentation of many offerings which though trifling enough as far as intrinsic worth goes have a tremendous value to the donors and the recipients.

Of course the heart is the sign and symbol of St. Valentine and the Valentine dance is usually decorated generously with heart devices, made of flowers or cut out from pink cardboard with occasional appropriate introductions of china cupid, and gilded bows and arrows to complete the effect.

Invitations written upon heart-shaped pink cards may be sent to the expected guests; and the hostess of the Valentine party takes great care to divide her young people congenially, whether the couples will dance the cotillion together or merely take part in merry games. Naturally, the supper table will be rosy with candle shades, flowers and candles in the lovely pink shade preferred by Cupid and there will be many costly prepared flirtation nooks and corners for "tween dances. It is the easiest thing in the world to arrange such a corner. All that is needed will be two chairs and a screen, potted plant or lamp on a small table behind which the chairs may be given an isolated look. No fear but that the young worshippers at St. Valentine's shrine will discover the cozy corners very speedily.

The Valentine party should open with a delivery of Valentine mail. A big bag is brought in on the back of a small boy dressed like a diminutive Cupid-Postman; that is with gauzy wings, bow and arrow, and a curly yellow wig; but a little blue postman's suit may replace the tulle drapery which might well embarrass some of the young guests as well as Cupid himself--if he be a typical American small boy. The guests form a circle around Cupid who turns round and round, gazing into each face. When he stops and points with his bow, the person directly in front of him steps forward and "grabs" a missive from the grab-bag. The Valentines may take the form of little favors, appropriately decorated cards, jokes, gifts or anything else desired.

For the Valentine cotillion dozens of appropriate and inexpensive favors may be picked up on the counters where such knick-knacks are displayed. The crepe paper favors are especially dainty and pretty, and cost but a trifle. Illustrated are some new favors brought out this season. They include heart-caps, cocked hats, Cupid may be purchased by the dozen for the purpose. Cupids may be clipped from crepe paper napkins and pasted on the outer side of the dance-card, or a water-color decoration may be added.

The Valentine fan is a particularly pretty cotillon favor. In heart-shaped medallions framed with forget-me-nots, are dainty pictures of true lovers; the panels at the ends being inscribed with appropriate Valentine sentiments. Other appropriate and attractive favors are: heart-shaped silver keyrings, heart-shaped boxes of candy which may be afterward used for trinket boxes, heart-shaped cards into which silver stick-pins or other pins are thrust, cut glass vases for small flowers, Pompadour silk bags for opera glasses, fancywork and the like, corsage bouquets or boutonnières with frills of lace paper, pink silk parasols, pink pin-cushions, heart-shaped boudoir pillows and scores of other things of a similar nature.

If every guest will bring a comely Valentine for another guest, these to be distributed at some time during the evening it will add to the fun. The youthful guests--especially the masculine members of the party, should be cautioned not to make their good-natured "knocks" severe enough to damage anybody's feelings or the party may be spoiled.

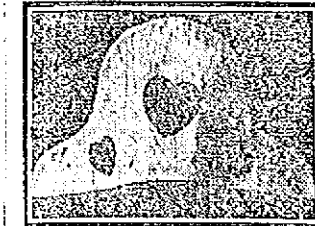

Quaint and delightful are the 1913 Valentines, and very clever too are some of the sentiments expressed. The humorous Valentines are funny without containing any hidden sting and particularly attractive are the cut-out Valentines with crinolined and poke bonneted maids, languishing looking small dogs and chubby, adorable babies.

SAYS CONDITIONS THERE ARE INTOLERABLE
Mr. Dante Completes Investigation of Lower Regions --
Criticizes Satan -- Will Publish Book.

Florence, Italy, Jan. 25, 1900, A. D.
—Startling revelations concerning intolerable conditions in Hades and its environs, are soon to come to light as a result of the recently completed tour of that country by Mr. Dante Alighieri, of 3191 Garibaldi avenue, this city. The expenses of the tour were met by several capitalists of this city, who have asked that their names be withheld from the public prints. While they contend that their interest in the matter is a purely philanthropic one and that they never expect to vote from the place in question, nor have any business dealing with H. R. H., Satan, there are widows and orphans in the poorer sections of East Florence who maintain that their money was ill-gotten and that they hope to have some of the current abuses righted before the Grim Reaper sends them his card.

This is strenuously denied by Mr.

lenses the minute I stepped on the ferry that carried me across the Styx river. While several million shades pass that way every day, and the increase this year on account of the war in the Balkans has been one of 49 per cent, there has been no apparent attempt to put on new boats or make modern improvements on the infernal ferries in commission.

"One fact that may contribute to this condition is that Admiral Sharon, sole owner and operator of the Inter-Universal Steamship and Navigation Company, has a perpetual franchise on the business. Furthermore, the terms of the grant are such that all competition is barred out forever. While we make considerable fuss here on the outer crust about the satiable appetite of trust magnates, we can count ourselves fortunate indeed that Mr. Sharon has no interest in the transportation line above ground. No mortal trust would be such a poor sportsman as to accept terms that thus strangled all competition before birth.

"There are but four boats on the Styx run. They are the Sharon II, Sharon III, Sharon IV, and the Luella Sharon. The names of the first three are indications of the monumental egotism of the owner—the last is named for his youngest daughter. All four are such rotten hulks that no respectable barnacle would hang to them in the Atlantic Ocean. Every trip is so overcrowded that there is no room to sit down—the seats having been removed so that more passengers could be carried at one load.

"I looked closely and did not find a single life-boat or a life preserver on any of the fleet. This is a fair example of the way in which all rights of the traveler is ignored. I asked Admiral Sharon about these things, and his defense was that he could not afford to put in improvements since all travel was one way, and there was no freight carried on the line. He averred that the business last year was conducted at an actual loss and pointed out that the stocks of his company were selling at about what it cost to print them on the floor of country I visited, to the ribald insults of friends who have no more manners than a street car employee. These natives do not let their boorishness stop with mere insults. They go about with long tridents—something like the pitchfork that is used in our rural communities. With these they prod and annoy the shades so that life is miserable for them. I learned that a movement was on foot some time ago to have a law enacted compelling the fiends to blunt the ends of their tridents. It passed both house and senate, but was vetoed by H. R. H., Satan.

"It was in the heart of winter and at the height of the bathing season when I visited Brimstone Beach—the popular shore resort of Flame Sea. There is little or no supervision there of the costumes that the bathers do or do not wear. I saw with my own eyes persons toiling on the hot sands and disporting themselves in the vitriol, clad in bathing suits that would have shocked the oldest life guard at Atlantic City.

"Conditions in the boilers that heat the country are the worst that I have ever seen—and I have been in the stoke holes of the Atlantic liners. Men who are unaccustomed to hard work and whose hands are as soft as a girl's, come down here and are put to work on a shift that works 24 hours a day, without any preparation or warning.

The finest of Anthracite coal is used, and it is figured by statisticians that every year 23,456,667,091,328,000,954 units of heat goes into the air, a total and eternal loss."
In spite of the strenuous objection of real estate dealers of Hades, who fear the results of his investigations, Mr. Dante will write a book on his observations in Hades. It will be published by Blink & Blank, and will be profusely illustrated with photographs by the author. The book will sell for $1.50 at all book stores. It will be neatly printed on deckle edge paper and be bound in attractive red cloth.

Dante. He declares that what few expenses there were, were met by some personal friends, and that his guide on the trip was the late Virgil, a poet, who did the office through friendship and did not charge him a plaster for it.

Mr. Dante was seen soon after his return at his luxurious bachelor apartment in the Footers Arms. He was suffering from a slight cold in his head, which, he explained, came from the sudden change of atmosphere when he emerged from the sub-basement regions.

"As to the charge that there was tainted money behind me," said Mr. Dante, "I can answer that easy one with both hands tied behind me and my eyes shut. In the first place, if there had been any contamination on what little cash I carried in my jeans, it would have been effectively rid of all germs before I had traveled three infernal miles. The temperature there was so high that no microbe could have lived even if he sat on a chunk of ice and had a high-gear electric fan turned on him.

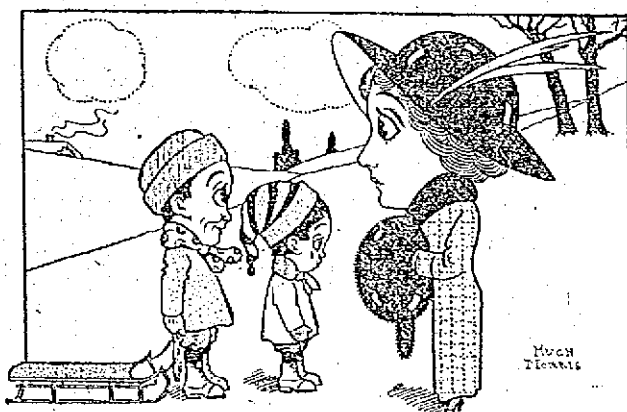

"Furthermore, my traveling expenses were practically nil. About the heaviest outlay consisted in the made-to-order asbestos costume which the climate made necessary."

Mr. Dante interrupted himself here to give vent to a violent sneeze. After which he partook of a pink lozenge and continued in a more robust tone. "Evidences of antique methods and inefficiency began to assail my alert

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House

Few people realize the immense value of copyrighted moving picture films, or understand the great care which is given to these thousands of feet of celluloid ribbon, which flash on a whitened screen scenes and story in kinematography. Thus at first one would hardly understand why the Paul J. Rainey African Hunt films, to be seen at the Opera House on Monday, Jan. 27, for seven days, are insured for $100,000, or why each night after the performance an operator, guarded by a policeman, takes them to a safely deposited vault, where they remain until they are needed at the theatre. But these precautions can be understood when it is known that the Jungle Film company, which owns the Rainey pictures, places a conservative estimate of their profits from this source during the coming theatrical season, $20,000. There are now four exhibitions of these pictures going on, namely: Walnut street theatre, Philadelphia; Lyceum theatre, New York; Colonial theatre, Chicago; and the Park theatre, Boston; and it is acknowledged by these experts in the motion picture business, that these shows during the summer months alone will represent a profit of $50,000.

The Playhouse

"Facing the Music" a light, breezy comedy, which is to be the weekly offering by The Drama Players, at The Playhouse, commencing Monday, Jan. 27, is a piece that runs with Henry Dixey at the Garden theatre, New York city, a full season, and later enjoyed a pronounced success on its tour of the country. That it will prove enjoyable to the large number of patrons of this theatre goes without saying. It has a complicated plot that threatens disaster to more than one household, but it is cleared up to the entire satisfaction of those concerned. The action of the piece is fast and furious, and has a laugh for every minute of the two hours or more of its presentation. The leading characters are in capable hands and the entire presentation is almost sure of creating a favorable impression on lovers of rich humor well done. Isaac Dillon, whose past efforts have had their reward in making him one of the most popular members of the company, will be seen in one of the principal characters, and Miss Grace Young and Miss Laura Tingle will also find opportunity to display their ability in the lighter and slightly amusement which comedy productions offer. Howard Sidney can't help being a success for comedy in his long suit, and Mrs. Byers will surely contribute her proportional share in the funmaking. The first performance of "Facing the Music" will be given Monday night and twice daily during the remainder of the week. See it and enjoy its laughs.

Merrimack Square Theatre

It is to be an all feature bill at the Merrimack Square theatre next week and one of the star acts is to be Frank Bush. Those who already know him will not doubt be on hand to welcome him to "our city," while those who don't, will be sure to get acquainted with him during the week. Nothing just like him ever struck Lowell before—and here's a tip to the wise—if you want a good hearty, wholesome laugh don't let next week slip by without paying a visit to the Merrimack. Chas. Terris & Co. in "The Proclaimer and the Man," an absorbing one act play, which deals with a present day evil in a forcible and novel manner, is a banner number. The role of "Father Anthony" is very effectively interpreted by Mr. Terris and the tense dramatic situations are softened by pleasing bits of comedy's animals with Oscar, the man monkey is an animal act out of the ordinary, while the almost human things the monkey Oscar does is truly wonderful. The Hildeberg Four, a quartet of excellent singers present a refined mixture of the most classical as well as popular successes. The photo-plays for the week include a two reel subject among others, called "Kings of the Forest." This is one of the most sensational as well as difficult pictures ever taken. Difficult because of the wild animals in the film and sensational because the story is of a highly tense and dramatic nature.

Tomorrow an entire new show has been arranged for the concerts and includes five first class vaudeville acts, together with a new and complete series of photo-plays. Phone 2933 for good seats.

H. P. Keith's Theatre

Hardeen, brother of Harry Houdini, and with him recognized as the greatest masters of handkerchiefs, manacles, anklets, leg lions of strange makes, will be at the Keith theatre, next week, and will challenge all persons in his audience to trot forth any make of handkerchief which they may possess. He doesn't deposit a money guarantee that he will emerge therefrom but up to the present time he has not been baffled, and it is doubtful if at this late time he will be beaten. Hardeen works like a perfect fiend. He doesn't spare himself in the least, but goes at a thing with his heart and soul, and this is about three-fourths of his success. The other fourth is pure knowledge of what he is attacking. Hardeen got into the business in a pecu-har manner. At one time he was associated with Houdini in a circus trick. Later he left public showing and went into commercial life. During this period Houdini was traveling in Europe, and the demand for him became so pronounced that Hardeen was tempted to go to the continent and perform. But he refused to take his brother's name. In a few months Hardeen became known as widely as was Houdini. He performed the same tricks, he did the same dare-devil stunts, he took as great chances and he worked audiences into just as high a state of enthusiasm and raptures. Issued complaints and across the first he recognized was that of the late King Oscar I of Sweden. After that he went to England and was challenged nightly by Londoners, box makers and even by men of the army who wished to stick him. They all failed, although at times it took him over two hours to get out of some strait jacket. Locked in a cell in Scotland yard it took him two hours and 15 minutes to escape, yet escape he did. He announced later that he would get out of the same cell in 15 minutes, but the offer was not given again. Hardeen will create a tremendous sensation here, and he will deserve all of the good things which may be said about him. He will be only one of the very good things on the bill. The others will be Lorraine & Dudley, Farber sisters, Georgia trio, Charles Weber, Hallen & Hayes, Farro, and Mahel Howard. Tomorrow afternoon and evening five new acts and six motion pictures will constitute the entertainment. A big show for the minimum of price.

GOV. WILSON AT ELLIS ISLAND A STATE OF SIEGE AND ANARCHY IN OWNERSHIP OF MODEL OF AMERICA

Saw Country's Immigration Laws in Operation—Did Not See Castro

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The next president of the United States saw his country's immigration laws in operation today at Ellis Island. Governor Wilson called the visit a pleasure trip, but the immigration officials were inclined to attach importance to the fact that with him came several prominent persons who have been active in improving the conditions surrounding immigrants.

Under the escort of William Williams, commissioner of immigration, Mr. Wilson saw Finns, Russians, Italians and other Europeans put through their examinations. He attended a session of the special board of inquiry, the final court of appeal at the island and saw seven aliens rejected. Three big ships landed 1300 steerage passengers this morning and the station hummed with activity.

The governor did not see General

Cipriano Castro, who is fighting for the privilege to enter the United States. The only reference to the Venezuelan was made by a woman in the party, who asked Commissioner Williams if they might not see the general. The commissioner replied that visitors were not given this privilege.

In the governor's party were Mrs. Wilson, the Misses Jessie and Eleanor Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Royal Meeker, professor of political economy at Princeton, William Strait and Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander, at whose suggestions the trip was made, and others.

The governor saw a Russian rejected on account of a weak heart and listened to the testimony before the board of special inquiry regarding another Russian charged with being a "white slave." This man was ordered deported.

THE TURKISH CAPITAL

Young Turks Searching Houses and Confiscating Documents—War Vessels Dispatched to Scene

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Constantinople is practically in a state of siege and terror reigns, according to reports received by the peace delegates representing the Balkan allies. From the same source it is reported that the young Turks, fearing that the reins of power may again slip from their hands, are arresting their adversaries in the Turkish capital right and left and are searching houses and clubs and confiscating documents, hoping in this way to break up the organization of the opposition.

The allies express the opinion that under these circumstances any excess may be expected. The foreigners and Christians in Constantinople are in imminent danger. The powers expect the wildest excesses by the young Turks.

With this prospect in view the European powers have decided to send war vessels to reinforce the ordinary guardships stationed at Constantinople. Italy, especially, is alarmed over the return to power of the young Turks who were inexorable during the Lybian war.

Key Irreconcilable

The United States ambassador at Constantinople, William Rockwell, during the negotiations attempted by him in conjunction with Thomas J. O'Brien, United States ambassador at Rome for the conclusion of peace between Italy and Turkey, described Djavid Bey, who was then Turkish minister of finance and is now the head of the committee of union and progress as an irreconcilable. Djavid Bey declared that Turkey would fight in Tripoli as long as she had a soldier left.

The position of the 50,000 residents of Turkey is now regarded as so precarious that Italy has despatched to Constantinople the cruisers San Marco and Pisa and the gunboat Archimede, which are capable of landing 500 blue-jackets. At the same time the Italian admiral has ordered the Italian squadron now stationed at the islands of St. John's river, Florida, by the Confederates who had used her as a privateer. He presented it to the post.

The American was built by a syndicate of New York yachtsmen from designs by George Steers and went to England in 1851, where she won the cup which has since borne her name.

The Famous Yacht Which First Captured America's Cup, Stirring Up Controversy

WORCESTER, Jan. 25.—A model of the America, the famous American yacht which first captured the America's cup, is stirring up some controversy among the members of the local post of the Grand Army of the Republic. The question of its ownership is under discussion.

Congressman Butler Ames, the owner of the America, today asked the post to send him the model which he wishes to present to the New York Yacht club, of which he is a member.

According to the Grand Army men the model was taken from the cabin of the America by a Worcester man when the yacht was settled in St. John's river, Florida, by the Confederates who had used her as a privateer. He presented it to the post.

The American was built by a syndicate of New York yachtsmen from designs by George Steers and went to England in 1851, where she won the cup which has since borne her name.

The yacht returned to America and was captured at Norfolk by the Confederates.

Following the war the vessel was raised by the government and used as a training ship, later being sold by the government to General Benjamin Butler.

She was somewhat altered, after coming into the Butler family and later was again fitted out as a pleasure craft taking part in several of the early races for the international cup. She has participated in many of the New York club cruises under the private command of Colonel Butler Ames, a grandson of General Butler, but has not been in commission since 1901. She is now in Fort Point channel, Boston, across the street from the South station. She is in excellent condition and will probably be under sail again.

The model was discovered while the veterans were house cleaning yesterday.

ORDERED ARREST OF GEN. SICKLES

Former Chairman of N. Y. State Committee Charged With Misappropriating Funds

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—An order was received in this city today from the attorney general's office in Albany directing that General Wm. Sickles be taken into custody on the charge that he misappropriated certain funds entrusted to his care. General Sickles was chairman of a state commission that controlled large amounts of money.

The order was issued in connection with a civil action begun by the state against General Sickles for the recovery of the alleged shortage, which it is charged, the general converted to his own use. Under the order General Sickles will be required to give bail equal to the amount of the alleged shortage and with the understanding that the bond will be forfeited to the state if judgment is rendered in favor of the state.

According to the records in the state comptroller's office General Sickles as chairman of the commission handled approximately $500,000 of state funds from 1890 to 1912. The total amount of the alleged shortage was $28,475 but on December last Stanton Sickles, a son of the general paid the state $5000 and promised to make good the balance as soon as certain property in Spain owned by his mother could be sold.

General Sickles had nothing to say when told that an order for his arrest had been issued. "He knows nothing about the order but he will be here if any officers arrive," said a member of his household this afternoon.

BODY NOT YET RECOVERED

George Holwert Still Lies at the Bottom of Pawtucket Canal—Under-taker Continues Search

The body of George Holwert, the young man who committed suicide by drowning in the Pawtucket canal yesterday afternoon, has not as yet been found, despite the fact that Undertaker Albert's men worked all night, grappling the canal.

The Locks & Canals' officials were to empty the canal last night, but on account of some of the mills working this was impossible.

The Pawtucket canal from the locks in School street to another lock at the junction of Moody street was emptied this afternoon, but the body of George Holwert could not be found. The bottom of the canal was scrutinized from the Cabot street bridge where the man jumped in yesterday afternoon, as far as Moody street, but no trace of the body could be found. The canal will be emptied tomorrow and another search will be made.

STOLE 12 CLOCKS FROM B. & M.

Two Men Broke Into Freight Car in Nashua—Local Autoist Fined $25

Jellus Hickory and Henry M. Purtele, both thought to be residents of Lowell, were arraigned in the police court this morning on a complaint charging them with the larceny of 12 clocks from the Boston and Maine railroad sometime yesterday. The men were apprehended in this city after notification of the theft from Nashua authorities, the clocks having been taken from a freight car in the New Hampshire city.

According to the story of the police, the two men are alleged to have broken into a freight car in Nashua sometime yesterday and to have taken therefrom a dozen clocks. They then found that they had considerable time on their hands and set about disposing of some of it until they were arrested. Several of the clocks were recovered. The time pieces were valued at approximately $250 each and were of medium size.

In court this morning the defendants pleaded guilty and their trial was continued until next Wednesday, January 25.

Paid $25 For Not Showing License

John J. Henry was in court today on a charge of refusing to show his license to operate an automobile, when requested to do so by an officer. He was represented by Attorney J. Joseph O'Connor.

The officer, Michael Sullivan, testified that he had ordered the man to show his license and that he had dispatched a boy to his home for it. After five or six minutes the boy did not return and the man got into the machine, with which he was delivering ice cream, and drove away. Thomas B. Sullivan who happened to be nearby at the time of the occurrence, testified to the sending of the boy after the license and to the man's driving away before the arrival of the lad.

Judge Enright found the man guilty and imposed a fine of $25.

A Family Mix-Up

It was alleged that Joseph Fritz assaulted his sister because she was marrying a man whom he did not like and for that reason he greeted the judge in the police court room this morning. He pleaded not guilty and during the testimony, considerable was said about a sum of $100 which the defendant said the plaintiff's husband owed him. The defendant also denied striking his sister and said that her husband called him vile names when he went to the house. He was found guilty and paid a fine of $12.

The Chorus

There was the customary number of drunken offenders today. Frank J. Fallon was the first to have his name called and in response he withdrew the appeal which he had made in a hasty moment yesterday morning. He will serve the sentence of three months in jail.

Louis Lambert was sentenced to serve four months in jail for an offense of drunkenness; Mary A. Lessard got one month and John P. Donovan will reside for a time at the state farm at Bridgewater. James Larkin paid a fine of $5 and there were a number of two dollar contributions for first offenses.

For Neglect of Wife

James P. Hesslin was given a suspended sentence of four months in the house of correction for neglecting to provide for the support of his wife. He will be observed for signs of improvement during the coming month.

Schooner Run Ashore

BEAUSPORT, N. C., Jan. 25.—The schooner Gretna Johnson of Perth Amboy was hauled out of the sand off Cape Lookout, N. C. today by the revenue cutter Seminole. The schooner ran ashore last night while on her way from Charleston, S. C. to New York with a cargo of fish.

Shipowners Oppose Harter Law

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Shipowners, insurance adjusters and representatives of the Boston chamber of commerce protested today before the senate commerce committee against the proposed change of the so-called Harter law, which exempts vessel owners from liability for the loss of cargoes through ordinary dangers of navigation. An amendment by Senator Nelson, now under consideration, would exempt ocean-going vessels from the legal protection.

THE POLICE AUTO PATROL OVERHAULED AND AS GOOD AS NEW IS AGAIN GIVING FREE RIDES

THE POLICE PATROL AGAIN IN COMMISSION—AS GOOD AS NEW

The police patrol automobile, a two years of hard service and covered in all more than 12,000 miles without being gone over by the mechanics, and during that time, with the exception of the accidental stripping of a gear a year or so ago, it has been in perfect condition. It was not until Nov. 21, 1912, that the "Thomas Flyer" was finally committed to the garage for repairs, and even then there was no marked defect in the mechanism. At the Moody Bridge Garage Mr. Ranger carefully went over each part of the engine and accompanying machinery and remedied whatever slight defect there may have been. At the same time the body of the car was given a thorough coat of very dark green paint, so dark as to appear almost black, the machinery was thoroughly cleaned, in short, the whole auto was given a general overhauling. It was returned to the department as good as new a few days ago and since that time has made one or two business calls, upon which occasions it has transported guests to the municipal hotel on Market street.

The police patrol auto is a combination ambulance, first aid car, and general police conveyance. It is of course a covered affair with two shattered windows in either side and it is lighted by storage batteries by a switch under the driver's seat which connects with a dome light in the roof. The car will easily accommodate ten passengers and the running boards are made like chests, suitable for carrying two shot guns, revolvers, handcuffs, medicine chests and other articles of which there might be need on any one of the numerous trips. There is a large searchlight in front and the driver is protected by wind shields and covers to ward off the rain and snow.

Those in charge of the car at present are Messrs. Carl Nowe, Frederick A. Cote and William G. Moore, and these men received a Sun reporter in the stable where the machine is kept and showed him the workings of the machine. The police conveyance of Lowell is truly a credit to the city and will doubtless render many more years of effective service.

DO IT YOURSELF

"When Miss Elizabeth Rogers conceived the idea of establishing a school for girls in this house and on these grounds, she applied for assistance and advice to the man who had been the guiding spirit in the founding of another educational institution, and with her, the first of these churches. He was interested at once and promised to aid, which in Dr. Greene's case meant every effort of which he was capable, for its success. The work of planning and organizing was one involving great responsibility, thought and labor. Difficulties were met and overcome, differences of views arose and were reconciled. Most of this early work was done by Dr. Greene single handed. Later, when he invited me to join him, and when the school was opened he had Mrs. Underhill's invaluable aid, her brilliant mind, fine scholarship, combined with executive ability of a very high order, gave him the assistance he needed and shaped the course of Miss Rogers' project to the success that the school has since achieved. It goes without saying that intelligence and scholarship were essential to the work, and Dr. Greene had these and gave of them freely; but of more worth still, we think, was the influence of his high character and his rare consecration to the service of God and man. And yet we are not here to do homage to you, Dr. Greene, but to bring to you the portrait of a man who has loved and labored for this school beyond our words to measure, and who still regards it with tender affection and unabated interest. May he long be spared to us."

Rev. A. C. Forrin, speaking for the trustees said:

To me Dr. Greene stands for three things—first, educator, lover of his men. What the trustees would have the portrait do for this school, is to exert the same influence which he has exerted and has exerted in the past years, the influence of a Christian atmosphere. May this be the effect of a beautiful portrait of a beautiful face and character."

Dr. Greene was not present, but Mr. Forrin read a letter from him, to the principal of the school, which was in part as follows:

"Your little card, notifying me of the unveiling of the portrait, came in due time and it is possible I should like to be present and see it. I cannot be a part in it; but this mild weather makes me so weak that I do not dare undertake the journey. I shall be present in spirit, though not in body. Mrs. Wood has done her part well. I am sure of that. Many have seen the portrait here and have complimented it. I have been honored in having it hung in the Rogers room, which is so dear to me. That the unveiling of the portrait may be a pleasant occasion to all is my sincere wish."

ered by five governors of these states at a luncheon given by Governor Foss today. Governor Holmes of Maine because of illness was not able to be present.

The executives sat and talked behind closed doors but it was understood they would take up among other matters, the discontinuance of the construction of the Southern New England Railroad Co.'s lines to Boston and Providence.

It has been charged and denied that the work was stopped because of an agreement between the Grand Trunk railroad, which controls the Southern New England, and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. The government charged that the railroad companies had agreed to stop work on the New England coast in order to prevent the election of President Alfred Zayas, who was defeated at the recent election for the presidency. The gathering was marked by an unexpected moderate tone. The orators deprecated any attempt to revolt and expressed their wish to leave the question of the valley's independence to the people.

errors also had before them the suggestions of the host, that a solution of their difficulties might be possible through the creation of a New England transportation committee and state representations on railroad directorates.

Those present were Samuel E. Feller of New Hampshire, Allen M. Fletcher of Vermont, Aram J. Pothier of Rhode

THE AVIATION SOCIAL WAS GIVEN SIX MONTHS ONE DOSE MAKES INDIGESTION CO.

Will be Held at Y. W. C. A. Lowell Man Reckless
This Evening With Automobile

Tonight comes the aviation social at the Y. W. C. A. and all members of the association are invited to hear the final report of the aviators and enjoy the stunts of the separate teams. The social committee under Mrs. G. D. Farley will provide a program of entertainment, consisting of solos by Miss Ruth Dodge, readings by Miss Dorothy Moody, and violin selections by Miss Dorothy Farley.

Mrs. Willis Hatch, the head of the Curtis Reds, is confident of winning the meet, but the Blue Wrights under Miss Ida Woodles are creeping up every hour. The gymnasium team which has been delayed in its work by other activities in that department has begun to stir itself and will be heard from this evening. So far the Foreign club team leads with a total of thirty-eight members. Foreigners usually do not set a fast pace in aviation. The second highest is the home team on the Blue side with a total of thirty-four. The present team under Miss Hills is flying low, ready for a quick start this evening that will bring the blue biplane well up in the air.

To date the Reds stand 133, the Blues 103.

The vesper service will be of an unusual order Sunday as it will consist largely of music. Mrs. Eugene Russell and the other members of the Park Street Baptist church choir will render the Festival to Deum by Buck; "Even Me" by Warren, "Callist Thou Thus, O Master" composed by May, and "Lord, With Glowing Heart" by Schaeffer. One of the most talented violinists of Lowell, Miss Kathleen Wright, will play. Miss Ola Sargent will be the pianist.

TERRY BITTERLY SCORED

In the Trial of Alleged Woman Forger

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—William C. Terry, aged 40 years, whose name, it is charged, was forged to checks uttered by Mrs. Abbie L. Moulton of 36 Fairmount street, and who yesterday testified as a witness in the case against her, was arrested late last night by Special Officer Lyons of the Back Bay station. He is charged with a statutory offense, committed Dec. 7 of last year.

Terry was found by the officer at his home in South Boston and taken to the station where he was booked. He refused to talk to the officers regarding the case. Terry, it is said, refused to answer certain questions put to him in court yesterday, which led to a warrant being asked for.

Terry was bitterly scored at the trial of the woman yesterday in the second session of the municipal court. He is charged with uttering forged checks. Frank Keizer, counsel for the young woman, denounced Terry, declaring that he induced Mrs. Moulton to come to Boston and the young woman herself pointed an accusing finger at the witness.

Mrs. Moulton was arrested last Saturday evening and following a trial on Monday was committed to the Women's reformatory at Sherborn. She appealed and later Judge Bennett set aside the finding and ordered that she be called for trial again yesterday. Meanwhile an additional charge of uttering a forged check was placed against her by Special Officer Carey of Division 2. It is charged that she signed Terry's name to the checks.

Two checks which she passed on large downtown business houses were for $50 and a third was for $25.

Judge Bennett will give his decision in the case this morning. Mrs. Moulton was held in $500 and was taken to the Charles street jail at the close of the proceedings yesterday. The trial occupied the greater part of the afternoon and was largely attended.

In the direct examination Terry did not have much to say. He said that he had not seen the checks that were placed in evidence and that he had never signed them.

Upon cross-examination he said that besides being a mechanical draftsman he was an illustrator and had done work for New York publications. He said that he had been married twice and that his first wife divorced him. He has two sons. He said he was 40 years old and was 18 years when he was first married.

He said that he met Abbie Moulton at Rumford, Me., six years ago and also said that he knew she had been in Sherborn, but denied that he had written to her while she was there and suggested meeting her at a railroad station in this city. He said that he met her at a boarding dock in this city when she came here from Maine last September.

Dr. Parsons Dead

WILLIAM PARSONS, Jan. 25.—Dr. Eben Burt Parsons, for 21 years, prior to 1909, secretary to the Williams college faculty and registrar of the college, died yesterday morning at his home in College place.

In the superior criminal court at East Cambridge, yesterday, James H. Horsfall of this city was sentenced to six months in the Lowell jail by Judge Chase.

Horsfall was arraigned a year ago on a charge of manslaughter in having caused the death, on Nov. 11, 1911, in Wilmington, of Miss Ruth Kittredge. He was subsequently indicted by a grand jury on three counts: Manslaughter, reckless operating and operating an automobile while intoxicated. He was also indicted on two counts of going away after damaging property and persons. On the charge of manslaughter, the jury disagreed. On the charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated he was found not guilty. He was found guilty, however, of reckless operating and going away after damaging property and persons. At the trial a year ago Horsfall was given a six months' sentence and fined $200. The case was taken to the supreme court. The court overruled the verdict of guilty on the two counts of going away after damaging property and persons.

HEARING JAN. 30

Commission Will Give It on Petition for Trolley Freight Franchise in Clinton

CLINTON, Jan. 25.—The selectmen received notice yesterday afternoon that the state railroad commissioners will give a hearing in Boston Jan. 30 on the petition of the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway company for a trolley freight franchise in this town. Cleveland Morse, chairman of the selectmen, said he expected the company would be given the desired franchise by the state commission. A year ago a petition was filed with the selectmen and a hearing was given. At that time there was no marked opposition to the company getting what it desired, but there was a general expression of opinion that in return the company should give the town something in the way of better service or new lines into the suburbs, notably a line to the Clinton-Lancaster driving park. The selectmen took no formal action on the matter after the hearing.

Lancaster, Boylston and Berlin have granted franchises.

Mrs. Foley to be Turned Down

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Word reached City Hall yesterday that the appointment of Miss Margaret Foley, the well-known suffragist, to the board of children's institutions trustees, is to be turned down by the civil service commission.

While the civil service commission is given 30 days under the law to approve or reject an appointee of the mayor's, the commission has already used up nearly all of the time allowed it in this case. There are but four more week days left in which the civil service commission may act on Miss Foley's appointment.

Favors Uniting Departments

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The committee on ordinances of the city council yesterday afternoon voted to report "ought to pass" on an ordinance consolidating into a department of parks and recreation, the present departments known as park, bath, public grounds and music.

The new department will be governed by a commission of three members, two of whom will serve without pay, and the chairman will receive $7500 a year. The chairman, who must be a landscape engineer or architect, will be appointed by the mayor subject to approval of the civil service commission. His term will be fixed by the mayor.

WILSON GOES SHOPPING

President Elect in New York for Week End

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—To obtain rest and diversion from the strain of his official duties, President-elect Wilson came to New York for the week-end yesterday. He went shopping with Mrs. Wilson most of the afternoon and visited a half dozen stores without being generally recognized.

Last night the governor was the guest of a close friend at the theatre. He had no political engagements, he said.

It is very probable that the president-elect will visit the Metropolis every week-end before his inauguration, as his friends have cautioned him against overwork. Earlier in the day the governor had gone to Philadelphia to visit a dentist. He left there for New York at noon and will not be back in his office at the state house before Monday.

Although Governor and Mrs. Wilson escaped general recognition during their shopping tour, an incident at the very start indicated that their hopes in this respect might not be realized. The governor had agreed to meet Mrs. Wilson on an upper floor of one of the big stores and as he stepped out of the water and waited to the spot where she was waiting, some one recognized the president-elect.

There was an immediate flutter among the store employees, who flocked from all sides and surrounded the couple. An impromptu reception followed, at which scores of eager young women were greeted by the governor and his wife.

The playhouse which Governor Wilson attended last night was a very small one, and he was speedily recognized as he took his seat in the audience. In his honor the orchestra played the "Star Spangled Banner" the first time this national air has greeted him in his visits to theatres since his election to the presidency.

PARK STREET DAMAGE $3000

Troublesome Fire in Warren Building, in Which Hoseman Is Rescued From Lightwell

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Fire in the basement and street floor of the Warren building, 1A, 2 and 2A Park street, near the Park street church, did damage to the extent of $3000 yesterday morning. Hoseman Kennelly of engine 25 was considerably shaken up by jumping in the dark into a light well 15 feet deep. He lay at the bottom for some time and was nearly overcome by smoke when discovered by Chief Mullen and rescued. He was able later to resume work with his company.

The Boston Cooperative Flower Market, which occupies the basement and that portion of the street floor numbered 1A, suffered the greatest damage. The store at No. 2, occupied by Charles Skinner, dealer in precious stones, was also considerably damaged. The fire crept under the main entrance of the building at 2A, and was necessary to rip up a section of the flooring.

CONSIDER 30-ROOM SCHOOL

School Board and Aldermen Take Up Matter at Haverhill—Appropriation of $250,000 Is Sought

HAVERHILL, Jan. 25.—The municipal council and the school board held a conference yesterday, when the question of a site for a $250,000 schoolhouse with 30 rooms in ward 5 was discussed. The school board, which was represented by Dr. John F. Croston, Judge O. J. Carleton and H. E. Lewis, favored the A. J. Tilton property near Currier square, providing it could be purchased at a reasonable price. Alderman Bartlett suggested additions to the school at Tilton and to the power the congested conditions in the schools to that section of the city and favored a 30-room schoolhouse, providing it was built on a vacant lot near the 6th.

Mayor Moulton pointed out that under the amended city charter the school board has the right to power the question of sites and plans for new schoolhouses and that the municipal council cannot act without the approval of the school board. It was voted to permit Mayor Moulton to appoint a committee to investigate and report the price at which the Tilton property may be bought.

ICE MEN WORRYING

Lake Potanipo, Usually a Source for a Big Boston Supply, Refuses to Show a Real Freeze

MILFORD, N. H., Jan. 25.—Ice company officials are much worried over the lack of ice on Lake Potanipo, Brookline, N. H. On the shores of this lake there is storage for 100,000,000 pounds of ice, which is shipped to Boston. The summer is sent to Boston. This big crop, with rare exceptions, has been harvested in January.

At present there is less than five inches of ice. Negotiations have been made with owners of lakes and reservoirs in the northern parts of New England for a supply in case the freeze here does not materialize.

REGULATIONS FOR LENT

Precepts for Catholics—Season Begins Feb. 5

Rev. James P. E. O'Connell, the chancellor of the archdiocese, has made public the regulations for Lent, which begins on Feb. 5, or one week from Wednesday.

The rules and regulations governing the Catholic people during the holy season are set forth as follows:

"All the days of Lent, except Sundays, are fast days of obligation. Those only are bound to fast, however, who are over 21 years old and not of advanced age, no one in any case being bound to fast who is 60 years old. The following persons are also exempt from fasting: The sick and the convalescent; women during pregnancy and while nursing infants; those to whom fasting would cause grave injury to health, or produce such illness or exhaustion as would interfere with their daily duties, and whose occupations are of a very laborious and exhausting nature; those who doubt whether they are excused or not should consult with their confessor."

On fast days those under the law are allowed but one full meal and a light supper.

Those whose habit is to take dinner in the evening are allowed a slight refectation in the middle of the day. In all cases the breakfast should not be a meal, but should consist simply of a cup of coffee, chocolate or some other drink, with a small portion of bread.

"Those of the family who are not obliged to fast may eat meat more than once a day on any day when the use of meat is at all permitted."

"The use of flesh meat and fish at the same meal is forbidden to all persons during Lent, even on Sundays."

"Those who are in some way or other dispensed from fasting or abstinence during Lent must remember that they are all the more strictly bound to mortify and deny themselves in some other way. Abstinence from all intoxicating drinks in honor of the sacred thirst of our Lord is especially commended."

"The usual Lenten devotions will be provided in all the churches of the diocese, and the faithful should be reminded that they should endeavor by earnest prayer, heartfelt contrition and the worthy receiving of the sacraments to profit by the special graces of the holy season."

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 25.—Transcontinental traffic is again interfered with, a slide of snow and earth yesterday at Windy Point in the Cascade mountains having buried almost a mile of Great Northern Railway track to a depth of 60 feet in some places. It will require a week to clear the line. Rain has been falling on the western slope of the mountains and rivers are rising.

Deacon and Mrs. Harvey W. Pepper Celebrate Anniversary at Church in Providence

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 25.—Deacon and Mrs. Harvey W. Pepper of the Cranston Street Baptist church celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary at the church last night.

Rev. Hugh B. Carpenter, the pastor, spoke gracefully of the wedding anniversary and after paying a tribute to both Mr. and Mrs. Pepper, asked them to step to the platform. He then presented them two potted palms, the leaves of which were decorated with 57 bills, 57 being tied on. A gift and a message from Joseph Harris of Boston, the first clerk of the church, were also presented.

Following this Mr. and Mrs. Pepper, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. H. Howard Pepper and Miss Julia Pepper, received these present.

The committee of arrangements included Mrs. Mary C. Adams, Herbert E. Maine, Mrs. Harry C. Pearson, Miss Grace Southwick and Miss Florence Crowe.

Changes Are Made in Providence Public Schools—Boston Man Becomes Principal

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 26.—Two married women teachers in the North Providence public schools were dismissed yesterday. Miss Emma J. Carr, for over 10 years principal of the Marienville school, was transferred to the principalship of the Woodville school and B. F. Hicks of Boston was appointed principal of the Marienville school.

The position of special teacher in drawing and writing, which was created by Ex-Supt. F. H. Lincoln and which was held by the latter's wife, was abolished and Mrs. Lincoln was dropped from the roll of teachers. Mrs. Webb, an assistant teacher, was also dropped. Ex-Supt. and Mrs. Lincoln came here from Maine.

WATER DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Fire Causes Large Loss in the Home of Michael Cashman on Woodland Street, Newburyport

NEWBURYPORT, Jan. 25.—A fire at the home of Michael Cashman on Woodland street last evening resulted in a heavy damage before it was extinguished, although the loss from the fire itself was small.

The blaze started in a blind attic and a large amount of water was poured into the building. The house was built by the late Mayor George L. Jackson about 40 years ago and was one of the finest residences at the North End of the city.

Curved is the Line of Beauty -- Even In Tailored Wear Now -- Side Seams Eliminated In French Tailored Models -- Spring Colors Borrowed From the Far East.

THE only tailored thing about the new tailored suits for spring, is their pressing. Cut and lines are as far removed from the popular conception of the word "tailored" which suggests a certain masculine trimness and simplicity, as are the garments of the Orient from the business suit of the modern man.

Everything is draped, swathed, wound around the figure; and where this effect is not conveyed by the drape of the material it is suggested by the cut of the garment. For example, few of the new coats show regulation side seams, running down under the arm to the hip. Sometimes the back of the garment laps over and forms a corselet or belt in front as in a very smart suit of mixed mohair and worsted yarns by Drecohl; and sometimes the fronts of the coat are carried around to lap over the back panel, as in an equally smart suit of wine colored line by Janssens. And, by the way, Janssens of Paris is the particular favorite of Paris at the moment. This material is woven of silk and worsted threads and has been revived because of its perfect draping qualities combined with a great distinction of texture. It is lighter than worsted yet has a newer effect than the glistening charmeuse of which fashion has wearied. Lansdowne comes in a multitude of the beautiful new Eastern colorings—rich and glowing though subdued shades that are the rage this season, together with all other Eastern effects.

Tailoring the New "Bow-Figure."
This new spring tailored wear is essentially feminine. It drapes and swathes the natural figure in an almost classic manner, and the coat and skirt costume which shows a really straight line anywhere is a failure. Curved is the line of beauty now. The straight-front figure has passed and the bow-figure is the ideal of the moment. Even tailored wear must conform to this new figure ideal and all lines must be subtle, soft and flowing even as the lines of the natural figure—the feminine figure that is—soft and flowing. Of course, this new figure effect is not entirely owing to the corsettes, though the softly built but women accentuate the bow-figure by the way they stand, these days, and unless one has learned the trick of flexing the knees and throwing the figure into a relaxed curve of grace, it will be folly to pay a hundred or two hundred dollars for a new spring tailored suit in it to emphasize the fashionable bow effect.

A Thick Neck Another New Fashion Whim.

The bunched look about the neck is quite in line with the frenzy just now for Oriental and Eastern effects and Madame's throat promises to be rather uncomfortably swathed this spring—for the warm American climate. Some of the new Russian blouse suits for spring wear have turned down collars in place of the high, fitted collarettes or bands of the winter; but the collar is usually mounted on a tall band so that it suggests a swathed neck at the back, even when the front opens low on the throat. This thick neck idea is illustrated in the model of pruno mohair with a pleated skirt and braided coat.

The fanciful design of this coat is expressive of some of the rather freakish effects now being put out by the couturiers under the name of "tailored spring suits." As may be seen, this Russian suit, though undoubtedly very chic and up-to-the-minute in style, is anything but suggestive of tailored wear in the ordinary acceptance of the term. The finely side pleated skirt is confined under a four-inch hem of the material which keeps the pleats from flying out at the foot, each pleat, moreover, being stitched all the way down and very flatly pressed. The coat has no side seams, back and front sections lapping under a buttoned lap over side panels of pleating, stitched to within an inch of the lower edge where the pleats fall free. The sleeves are of side pleated mohair part of the way up, with caps of pruno colored satin attached just above the elbow. These satin sleeve-tops are part of a deep satin yoke, the front and back panels of the coat being slipped loosely over this undercoat of satin and pleating. The edges of the panels are finished with braiding. Note, also, the high collar of the coat, giving the fashionable "thick look at the neck." The skirt, though long as the prevailing mode demands, allows a glimpse of the patent leather buttoned walking boot.

The hat worn with this pruno colored mohair costume is also a French model and is in the new aeroplane effect—with a feather propeller at the rear.

Another pruno colored tulleur has an unmistakable flounce on the skirt, set above a hem of equal depth, so that two flounces are suggested. Flounces are very much the vogue, though as yet they have been used mostly on the thin frocks of embroidery and lingerie fabrics intended for Southland wear. That the flounce is invading the realm of tailored wear is proved by this Francis suit of pruno color which is accompanied by a pruno hemp hat trimmed with a clustered flower ornament in pruno and lilac shades. The side seams of the coat are hidden under braided motifs which follow the extravagantly fashionable Moorish arch pattern; and the coat has a collar of pale lilac moire silk embroidered in pruno color and opening over a jabot of cream lace. The two-tone parasol matches hat and suit, and boots of patent leather with buttoned tops of pruno cloth accompany the costume.

Coats In Many Lengths.

That not all the couturiers are of a single mind in respect to coat lengths is proved by spring tailored wear from

Paris. At one end of the list is Paquin, insisting upon three-quarter coats, belted at the waistline; and at the other, Callot Soeurs determinedly putting out coquettish little affairs falling short of the hip by several inches. Between and between are coats of every length; and it will be noted that no two models pictured on today's page show coats of exactly the same length. Shortest, perhaps is the attractive little coat of the black and white striped suit—an American tailor's inspiration, and a model that has already achieved popularity with those providing outfits for the South.

Fabric Combinations As Modish As Ever.

Again this spring are silk materials used with worsted stuffs, and all sorts of materials draped together in a wonderfully pleasing harmony when one considers the varieties of colors and weaves thus mixed up. Sometimes a shaped tunic over a skirt of contrasting material suggests the fashionable draped effect, though no actual drapery is introduced. This is the case in a braided tulleur which shows a coat and shaped tunic of olive brown cloth over a skirt of lansdowne. The skirt is extremely soft and clings about the feet, just showing the buttoned boot beneath; and the tunic is closely cut to the lines of the soft lansdowne skirt and is heavily weighted to keep it in place. The cut-away coat is braided in a chevron design which obliterates the side seams and above oddly shaped revers of velvet—a squarely cut collar of St. Gall embroidery in the new lacy effect. Many tailored coats have collars or jabots of this new lacy embroidery which is just now more distinctive than lace itself.

The Russian Blouse A Favored Model.

Every so often the Russian blouse, which is really the most graceful coat model womankind can put on, makes its appearance at the forefront of fashion—disappearing usually rather speedily, for Russian blouses are so easy to make up smartly at home, because of the belt which covers such a multitude of defects in the way of fit, that this style soon becomes too popular and is abandoned by the woman who dresses in exclusive style. Just now the Russian blouse is in one of its periodic ascensions and no coat style is smarter at the moment. These blouses are rather short and are gathered at the waistline, the belt merely encircling the low waistline over the perfectly fitting, but rather loose blouse, or tunic. The blouse may fasten down one side of the front, or exactly at the center front, the latter mode being the smarter. A Russian blouse of brick red cloth was one of the most interesting costumes worn in the "Whip" the big English melodrama from the old Drury Lane

Valentine Dance

DOWN through the years the pretty customs and traditions of St. Valentine, his day, have descended and the modern maid experiences just as much pleasure at the receipt of a Valentine message from "Him" as did her great-grandmother from a great grand "Him" of her time. But the modern maid's Valentine message takes quite a different form from the lace-papered, versified offering which made her great-grandmother's heart go pit-a-pat under its little, short-waisted bodice. It is likely to be a box of sweets, a cluster of violets, a fan, even a bit of jewelry, but whatever its outward form, in spirit it will have the same sentimental—and priceless value—to two people and to them it will be a Valentine, with all that the magic name implies.

In almost every community now a Valentine Dance takes place on, before, or immediately after the important Day of True Love, and the cotillion following such a dance is the opportunity for the presentation of many offerings which though trifling enough as far as intrinsic worth goes have a tremendous value to the donors and the recipients.

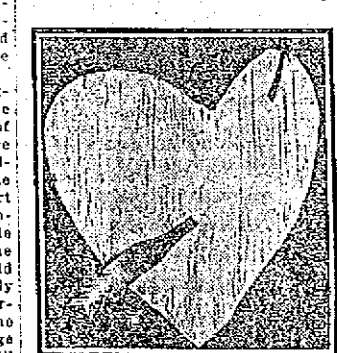

Of course the heart is the sign and symbol of St. Valentine and the Valentine dance is usually decorated generously with heart devices, made of flowers or cut out from pink cardboard with occasional appropriate introductions of china cupid, and glided bows and arrows to complete the effect.

Invitations written upon heart-shaped pink cards may be sent to the expected guests; and the hostess of the Valentine party takes great care to divide her young people congenially, whether the couples will dance the cotillion together or merely take part in merry games. Naturally, the supper table will be rosy with candle shades, flowers and candies in the lovely pink shade preferred by Cupid and there will be many costly prepared flirtation nooks and corners for "teen dances." It is the easiest thing in the world to arrange such a corner. All that is needed will be two chairs and a screen, potted plant or lamp on a small table behind which the chairs may be given an isolated look. No fear but that the young worshippers at St. Valentine's shrine will discover the cozy corners very speedily.

The Valentine party should open with a delivery of Valentine mail. A big bag is brought in on the back of a small boy dressed like a diminutive Cupid-Postman; that is with gauzy wings, bow and arrow, and a curly yellow wig; but a little blue postman's suit may replace the little drapery which might well embarrass some of the young guests as well as Cupid himself—if he be a typical American small boy. The guests form a circle around Cupid who turns round and round, gazing into each face. When he stops and points with his bow, the person directly in front of him steps forward and "grabs" a missive from the grab-bag. The Valentines may take the form of little favors, appropriately decorated cards, jokes, gifts or anything else desired.

For the Valentine cotillion dozens of appropriate and inexpensive favors may be picked up on the counters where such little knacks are displayed. The crepe paper favors are especially dainty and pretty, and cost but a trifle. Illustrated are some new favors brought out this season. They include heart-caps, cocked hats, Cupid arrows and Cupid himself—all made of rose colored crepe paper; touched up with gold. The cupid wand, tied with a bow of red ribbon is an especially pretty favor. The dance card is of pale pink cardboard with a golden cupid pasted on the outside and a bow of red ribbon with perill attached. Such dance orders may be made up at home by the girl who has a knack for such things. Cut the dance orders from large sheets of pale pink mounting paper and insert a double page of ordinary writing-paper inside, tying the little book together with red or pink ribbon and attaching one of the tiny pencils which of its periodic ascensions and no coat style is smarter at the moment. These blouses are rather short and are gathered at the waistline, the belt merely encircling the low waistline over the perfectly fitting, but rather loose blouse, or tunic. may be purchased by the dozen for the purpose. Cupids may be clipped from crepe paper napkins and pasted on the outer side of the dance-card, or a water-color decoration may be added.

The Valentine fan is a particularly pretty cotillion favor. In heart-shaped medallions framed with forget-me-nots, are dainty pictures of true lovers; the panels at the ends being inscribed with appropriate Valentine sentiments. Other appropriate and attractive favors are: heart-shaped silver keyrings, heart-shaped boxes of candy which may be afterward used for trinket boxes, heart-shaped cards into which silver stick-pins or other pins are thrust, cut glass vases for small flowers, pompadour silk bags for opera glasses, fancywork and the like, corsage bouquets or boutonnieres with frills of lace paper, pink silk parasols, pink pin-cushions, heart-shaped boudoir pillows and scores of other things of a similar nature.

If every guest will bring a comic Valentine for another guest, these to be distributed at some time during the evening it will add to the fun. The youthful guests—especially the masculine members of the party, should be cautioned not to make their good-natured "knocks" severe enough to damage anybody's feelings or the party may be spoiled.

Quaint and delightful are the 1913 Valentines. And very clever too are some of the sentiments expressed. The numerous Valentines are funny without containing any hidden sting and particularly attractive are the cut-out Valentines with ermined and poka-bonneted maids, languishing looking small dogs and chubby, adorable babies.

WORK ON THE BOSTON AND MAINE REPAIR SHOPS IS GOING ON RAPIDLY—EIGHT MAMMOTH BUILDINGS ARE BEING ERECTED

VIEW OF THE LOCOMOTIVE CAR SHOP AT BILLERICA

The work on the Boston & Maine car shops in Billerica is being pushed ahead rapidly. Eight large steel frame buildings, each with brick and well-laid and the steel work is being erected for several others. The steel work is being done by the Merrimack Construction Co. of Lawrence.

The locomotive shop, shown in the above cut, is a massive building 235 feet by 175, and is two and one-half stories high. The exterior work on this structure is completed but it will take many weeks to paint the interior, lay the tracks and install the machinery. When this building is fully equipped it will probably be the best repair shop owned by the Boston & Maine railroad.

Another large building is the blacksmith shop, situated in the rear of the locomotive shop. This building is 232 feet by 90, and is the same height as the building shown in the cut. The tracks have been extended from the main line to these buildings, and all material is brought directly to the building by rail. The brick work is finished on this building and all that remains to be done is to place the glass in the skylights. All the buildings are well equipped with skylights, so that the workmen will not use artificial light more than is absolutely necessary.

The power house, situated beside the blacksmith shop, is a building that has taken more time to construct than any of the others, as it was necessary to excavate 10 feet below water level and then the foundation and basement work has been cemented and made waterproof. The steel work is being built at the present time and it is necessary for the painters to work at a point 70 feet from the ground with nothing but the framework for support.

Another building in process of construction is the passenger repair shop, a building which although not as large in size as some of the others will contain over 1,000,000 bricks, storehouse and office, and paint shop.

It is expected that work will be turned out in several of the buildings by the first of June. The Boston & Maine will employ over 2000 men to operate these shops and it is expected that as time passes more buildings will be constructed.

A boarding and lodging house has been erected directly opposite the repair shops by Mrs. Georgiana Nadeau, and although many of the workmen make their home in Lowell, Mrs. Nadeau has had as many as 80 men stop there at one time.

Several dwellings are being erected near the repair shops and the prospects are good for a building boom at Billerica in the spring. The new dwellings are mostly situated near Fordway or on High street and are frame buildings two and one-half stories high.

Dalton Family Party Ends in Quarrel

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The one thing that stands out clearly and uncontested is that though Christmas came as usual to the home of Frank Dalton, 71 Chatham street, Lynn, last month, it wasn't the merry Christmas that the Yuletide should have brought.

This appears in the testimony of all the witnesses so far heard at a trial begun yesterday in the seventh session of the superior court, before Judge Bell and a jury, of a suit brought against Mr. Dalton by his daughter, Mrs. Anne M. Fox of 167 Charles street, Boston, for $10,000 damages for alleged assault and battery upon her in ejecting her from the house, to which she had been invited.

As was their custom, the Daltons had invited their daughter and son-in-law to Christmas dinner, but this season the family reunion is admitted by all to have lacked something of the peace and good-will flavor it should have had.

There are different stories about the reasons and results.

At all events, with the advent of the

$73,000,000 Yield in Industry 20 Years Old

The sugar consumption of the United States per month will exceed eight billion pounds, against four and one-half billion in 1900, three billion in 1890, two billion in 1880, and a little over one billion in 1870. Foreign countries, our own island and our own fields have respectively increased their contributions to the sugar supply of the United States. The total imports from foreign countries during the year will, according to the latest figures of the statistical division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, aggregate four and one-half billion pounds, against a little over four billion pounds last year. The receipts from Hawaii will approximate 1200 million pounds, against 1136 million last year, those from Porto Rico about 760 million pounds, against 654 million last year. The product of the beet sugar fields of the United States will approximate fourteen billion pounds, against 1200 million pounds last year, while the cane sugar fields will probably show a little increase or perhaps a smaller total than last year by reason of the conditions resulting from the overyield during the current year in the Mississippi valley.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT

Joseph Forget of Sutton Denied Recompense For Alleged Interference in Horse Trade

WORCESTER, Jan. 25.—Recompense for alleged interference in a horse trade was denied Joseph Forget of Sutton by the verdict of a superior court jury yesterday in his suit against Felix Vadnais. The jury found for the defendant, Forget, who alleged that Vadnais had sold a horse to Henry Oliver of Woonsocket by telling the prospective purchaser, the animal was in good faith and that the plaintiff, Oliver, as well as the plaintiff's wife and other witnesses, testified that Vadnais' alleged statements were the cause of the failure of the sale. The defense emphasized the fact that the transaction over the horse was carried on during a Sunday. The jury had the case but short time before it returned its verdict for the defendant.

ICE OUTLOOK DISCOURAGING

Lowell May Have to Depend on Northern New Hampshire For Its Supply the Coming Summer

The outlook for the ice crop in this vicinity is becoming daily more and more serious, and unless some of the numerous "cold snaps" which have been so confidently predicted materialize before many days the consumers of ice must reconcile themselves to an inevitable increase in its cost.

Never before has there been such a scarcity of ice in the rivers, lakes and ponds at this season as now exists, and the worst of the situation is that a cold snap, which would be a relief to the weather, will do little or nothing to relieve it. It requires at least two weeks to harvest the ice crop from a pond of respectable size, and the storms and warm days which invariably come the latter part of winter—and which have been an almost steady diet this particular winter—are a serious handicap to this harvesting.

Since there is at present no hope of a harvest from any of the local ponds it seems probable that residents of this city will have to depend on northern New Hampshire for their ice supply.

TAFY PARTY

Held at St. Louis' Hall Last Evening For the Benefit of the Church Debt—There Was a Large Attendance

There was a large attendance at the taffy party which was given last night at St. Louis' hall for the benefit of the church debt. The affair was organized by Miss Blanche Destrempe and was very successful. Taffy of all descriptions was served, and it was said that the quality was all. There was a varied entertainment program rendered and all in all, a very pleasant evening was spent.

Narcisse Gadbois presided over the gathering, and Miss Destrempe was assisted by the following young women: Misses Josephine Bourassa, Bertha Brault, Lucie Maillet, Merida Morissette, Aurora Lapointe, and Corinne Desrosiers.

How to Be More Beautiful.

By Dr. True

The love of good looks is a very natural feeling. We are all just human enough to wish to look well and make a good appearance.

I have met many people, some of them ladies, who were mortified because their faces, otherwise attractive and often even beautiful, were marred by a dry and scaly skin, flabby and wrinkled, or by unwholesome pimples and blotches.

It has been my good fortune to point these people to a safe and very simple remedy for their affliction; and because there are many others who suffer in the same way, I am giving my remedy here. Everyone should understand, however, first, that these troublesome things have a very simple cause and come only because nature is failing to eliminate poisons from the system in a natural way. If these people will take Dr. True's Elixir they will aid stomach and bowels to carry off waste matter that now is clogging the pores of the skin and marred physical beauty.

I counsel all who wish to possess good looks to follow this advice and I urge them further to use, every night, Parker's 2-30-2 Cold Cream. Persist in this and nature thus aided will give you back the full measure of beauty that is yours by right.

Foss Wants New England States to Join

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Governor Foss suggests a new transportation commission to the governors of the other five states, who are to confer in Boston today upon the railroad question.

He also says that each state should have representation on the directorate of the railroad in that state.

The governor makes his suggestion in the form of a letter to Governors Haines of Maine, Felker of New Hampshire, Fletcher of Vermont, Pothier of Rhode Island and Baldwin of Connecticut.

"My suggestion," says Governor Foss, "would be that we might and a way to establish a permanent board with the power of all our states behind it. Could we not constitute the six chairmen of the commissions having power over transportation in these states, as a New England transportation commission?"

The fundamental difficulty in the present situation is that we have no railroad system covering all New England, which we are attempting to regulate by six separate commissions." The governor discusses the powers of the New England commission at length and says that while it would not have the power of law behind its decisions, it would nevertheless be strongly fortified by public sentiment. The conference takes place this afternoon at the Hotel Touroline. It results from a suggestion made early in the year by Governor Ross.

Afterwards the governor went to Connecticut, where he talked with Governor Baldwin about it. He also conferred with Governor Pothier of Rhode Island in Boston.

Best Set of Teeth

My $8 sets are the most lifelike and most fitting plates that dental science can promote. Unless you require a special plate, $8 is all that need be in this office for the best set. We have the reputation of making the most natural looking, the finest fitting and the best wearing teeth. No set ever leaves our office until the patron is perfectly satisfied.

Behind Fats at Setting
PARIS, Jan. 25.—The new French cabinet under the leadership of Aristide Briand, yesterday submitted the customary declaration of policy to the chamber of deputies and the senate. While he was speaking the premier was suddenly taken ill.

On leaving the chamber he fell fainting into the arms of one of the deputies. Doctors say his condition is not serious. The attribute his fainting to the overheated air of the chamber.

The deputies voted their confidence in the new minister, 324 to 77.

HOW TO STOP BAD LEGISLATION

District Attorney Whitman of N. Y. Says Enforcement of Law Will Do it

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman of New York, the man on the firing line in the Rosenthal murder case who sent Police Lieut. Becker and three notorious gamblers to death cells in Sing Sing, talked at the Boston City Club last night on the solution of the problem of enforcing the law in our big cities.

"The time is surely coming," he declared, "when the native-born citizen and the foreigner who comes to our shore must realize the reason that no state in this country, however high its station, can with impunity defy the dignity, the majesty and the sovereignty of the law."

"This is no Utopian dream," he continued, "and the Boston City Club is doing more to realize it than its members think."

Contrary to expectations, the speaker alluded merely to the Rosenthal case as a prelude to what he had to say about municipal government.

"Particular crimes does anyone much good," he said. "While the manifestations of crime may be modified with changing conditions, human nature always remains the same."

Cities Are Negligent

Our cities are suffering from loose enforcement of the laws because the voters do not bring the same earnestness and patriotism into municipal affairs as into state and national questions.

"Many of our citizens—some of them the most exalted, who learn with indignation of corruption in the federal and state governments, show no difference when they hear that like conditions exist in the cities."

"Legislation alone cannot secure good government. Waves of reform come and go and are followed by law-making without limit. Yet conditions are actually worse in some communities whose charters have been revised again and again. In New York, for instance, we have laws enough to keep the city safe if the legislature should adjourn for 25 years. The trouble is, we provide the legal machinery and are deluded into believing that it does not matter who controls it, so long as it is good."

Enforce the Law

"But the people must remember that, in the last analysis, the enforcement of the law rests with them. There is no such thing as liberal enforcement of the law. The federal statutes have, for the most part, been rigidly and persistently kept in force for more than a century, and people know it is dangerous to fool with Uncle Sam. The only way to insure the respect of bad legislation and halt the growing restlessness and disregard for law is to enforce the law we have."

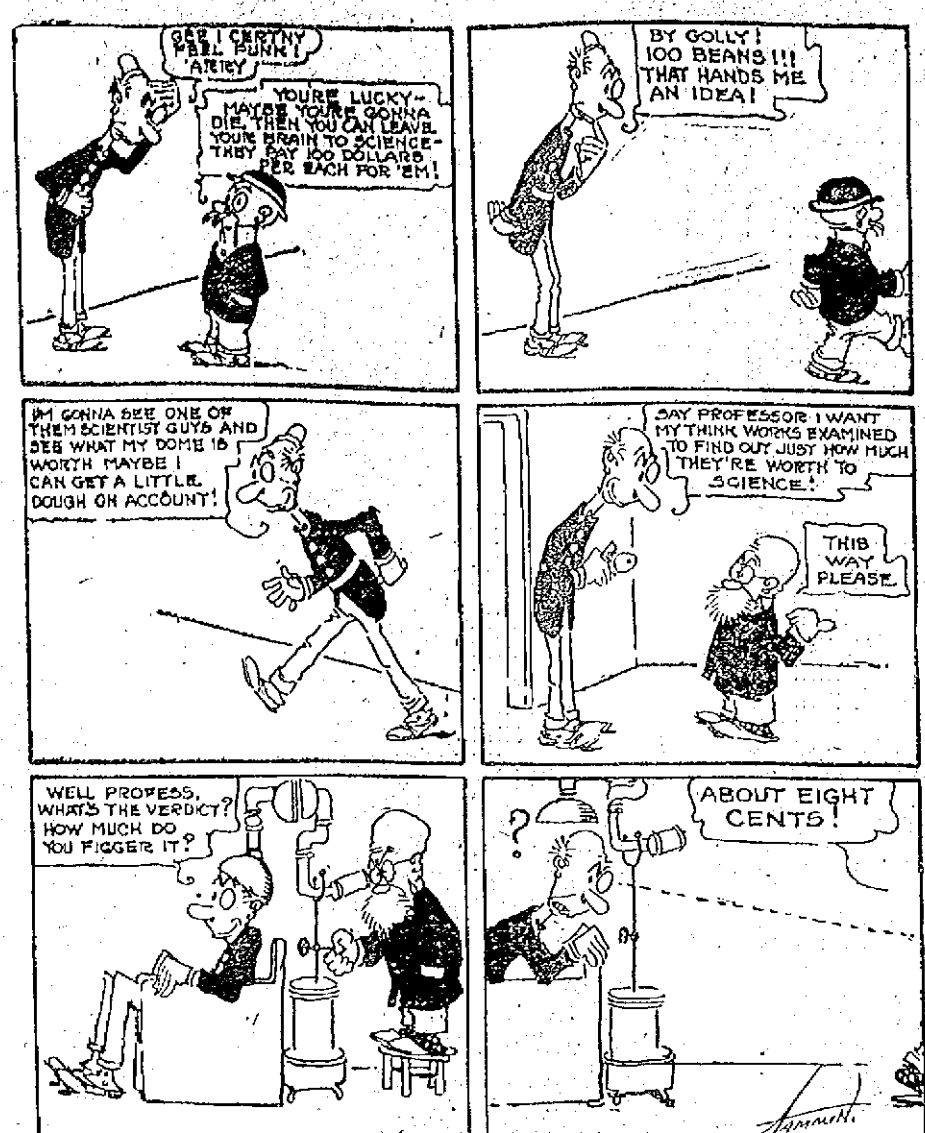

"Nor is it the greatest, the wisest and the most experienced representatives we need in office for this purpose, but earnest men dedicated to the simple proposition that the tasks delegated to them shall be properly performed."

"More than 111,000 men voted in New York in the national election of 1908 in excess of the number which had voted in the state election a year before. Yet in 1907 there were a number of judges to be chosen for terms of fourteen years."

Decrease in Vote

"Similarly, there was a decrease of 40,000 in the city vote of 1908 from the vote for president of the previous year, although men were to be elected who would control a budget larger than that of the state, and aldermen were to be chosen who, in some respects, were to have power affecting fundamentally the property, the lives and the liberties of all."

The speaker was introduced by District Atty. Pelletier of Suffolk county, who reminded the audience that Mr. Whitman has twice been a judge in New York. He stated also that the latter in head of the largest law office in the world, having fourteen first assistants, thirty-seven second deputies and clerks, process servers and others.

LEEVE BROKE FLOODING FARMS

VICKSBURG, Miss., Jan. 25.—The Beulah levee on the east side of the Mississippi river near Greenville, Miss., broke, and flood waters are pouring over some of the finest farming land in this section. The crevasse resulted from a settling of the foundation in the new levee.

1500 MEN TRIED TO CHECK FLOOD

VICKSBURG, Jan. 25.—Fifteen hundred men including several hundred Mississippi convicts had been working day and night for the last week in an attempt to rebuild the levee which was carried away by last spring's flood. Last night the new levee was two feet above the water stage but the river was rising rapidly and when the new foundation settled today the big embankment broke.

It is not believed possible to close the crevasse and the government and state levee workers will try to save frontage along Lake Jefferson where the increasing floods are threatening.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House

Few people realize the immense value of copyrighted moving picture films or understand the great care which is given to these thousands of feet of celluloid ribbon, which flash on a whitened screen scenes and story in kinematography. Thus at first one would hardly understand why the Paul J. Rainey African Hunt films, to be seen at the Opera House on Monday, Jan. 27, for seven days, are insured for $100,000, or why each night after the performance an operator, guarded by a policeman, takes them to a safety deposit vault, where they remain until they are needed at the theatre. But these precautions can be understood when it is known that the Jungle Film company, which owns the Rainey pictures, places a conservative estimate of their profits from this source during the coming theatrical season, $50,000.

There are now four exhibitions of these pictures going on, namely: Walnut street theatre, Philadelphia; Lyceum theatre, New York; Colonial theatre, Chicago, and the Park theatre, Boston; and it is acknowledged by those experts in the motion picture business, that these shows during the summer alone will represent a profit of $50,000.

The Playhouse

"Facing the Music," a light, breezy comedy, which is to be the weekly offering by The Drama Players, at The Playhouse, commencing Monday, Jan. 27, is a piece that ran with Henry Dixey at the Garden theatre, New York, a full season, and later enjoyed a pronounced success in its tour of the country. That it will prove enjoyable to the large number of patrons of this theatre goes without saying. It has a complicated plot that threatens dire disaster to more than one household, but it is cheered up by the entire satisfaction of those concerned. The action of the piece is fast and furious, and has a laugh for every minute of the two hours of more of its presentation. The leading characters are in capable hands and the entire presentation is almost sure of creating a favorable impression on lovers of rich humor well done. Isaac Dillon, whose past efforts have had their reward in making him one of the most popular members of the company, will be seen in one of the principal characters, and Miss Grace Young and Miss Laura Tittle will also find opportunity to display their talents in the lighter and slightly amusement which comedy productions offer. Howard Edgely can't help being good, for comedy is his forte, and Mrs. Byers will surely contribute her share.

Merrimack Square Theatre

It is to be an all feature bill at the Merrimack Square theatre next week and one of the star acts is to be Frank Dosh. Those who already know him will no doubt be on hand to welcome him to "our city," while those who don't, will be sure to get acquainted during the week. Nothing just like him ever struck Lowell before—and here's a tip to the wise—if you want a good hearty, wholesome laugh don't let next week slip by without paying a visit to the Merrimack. Chas. Terris & Co. in "The Preacher and the Slave," an absorbing one act play which deals with a present day evil in a forcible and novel manner, is a banner number. The role of "Father Anthony" is very effectively interpreted by Mr. Ferris and the tense dramatic situations are softened by pleasing bits of comedy.

Woodford's animals with Oscar the man monkey is an animal act out of the ordinary, while the almost human things the monkey Oscar does is truly wonderful. The Isidoreberg Bros., a quartet of excellent singers present a refined mixture of the most classical as well as popular successes. The photo-plays for the week include a reel subject among others, called "Kings of the Forest." This is one of the most sensational as well as difficult pictures ever taken. It is because of the wild animals in the film and sensational because the story is of a highly tense and dramatic nature. Tomorrow an entire new show has been arranged for the concerts and includes five first class vaudeville acts, together with a new and complete series of photo-plays. Phone 2653 for good seats.

B. F. Keith's Theatre

Hardeen, brother of Harry Houdini, and with him recognized as the greatest masters of handcuffs, manacles, anklets, ties, iron of strange makes, will be at the Keith theatre, next week, and will challenge all persons in his audience to trot forth any make of handcuff which they may possess. He doesn't deposit a money guarantee that he will emerge therefrom, but up to the present time he has not been baffled, and it is doubtful if at this late time he will be beaten. Hardeen works like a perfect fiend. He doesn't spare himself in the least, but goes at a thing with his heart and soul, and this is about three-fourths of his success. The other fourth is pure knowledge of what he is attacking. Hardeen got into the business in a peculiar manner. At one time he was associated with Houdini in a circus trick. Later he left public showing and went into commercial life. During this period Houdini was travelling in Europe, and the demand for him became so pronounced that Hardeen was tempted to go to the continent and perform. But he refused to take his brother's name. In a few months Hardeen became known as widely as was Houdini. He performed the same tricks, he did the same dare-devil stunts, he took as great chances and he worked audiences into just as high a state of enthusiasm. Royally issued commands and among the first he recognized was that of the late King Oscar I of Sweden. After that he went to England and was challenged nightly by locksmiths, box makers and even by men of the army, who wished to stick him. They all failed, although at times it took him over two hours to get out of some strait jacket. Locked in a cell in Scotland Yard it took him two hours and 15 minutes to escape, yet escape he did. He announced later that he would get out of the same cell in 15 minutes, but he never did, not given again. Hardeen will create a tremendous sensation here, and he will deserve all of the good things which may be said about him. He will be only one of the very good things on the bill. The others will be Lorraine & Dudley, Farber sisters, Georgia trio, Charles Weber, Hallen & Hayes, Farro, and Mabel Howard. Tomorrow afternoon and evening five new acts and ten motion pictures will constitute the entertainment. A big show for the minimum of price.

Deer Approval of Turkey Trot

HAVERHILL, Jan. 25.—The report that the school board has approved the "Turkey Trot" and the "Gaby Glide" at dances conducted by pupils of the high school is indignantly denied by members of the committee. REPEAL OF PROVISION HOLD SECOND SESSION

Of Free Passage in the Panama Canal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Chairman Adamson of the house committee in a formal statement today predicted that one of President-elect Wilson's first requests upon the incoming congress would be for a repeal of the free passage provision in the Panama canal act applying to American ships.

"If Secretary Knox succeeds in avoiding or postponing the demands of England," said Mr. Adamson, "the result undoubtedly also remove all foundation for the illogical claims of our people who say they are opposed to subsidies but still favor discrimination in favor of coastwise ships from tolls which is a subsidy. England may justly claim that the canal is to be used as an instrument to distribute subsidies under the treaty, those subsidies must be equal to all nations."

"The true issue for us to determine is, shall we rob our own people by an unjust discrimination to enrich the coastwise shipping trust?"

"I would not at all object to a brush with England if we had a fair case, but it looks very foolish and unprofitable to maintain any sort of row with commercial, diplomatic or warlike, to defend the infliction of a discrimination caused by the immoral and unjust robbery of our treasury and the masses of the people to confer benefits on a special interest."

Toledo Man Buys a Franch Heir

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—It is reported from the office of Harry Reinhardt, an art dealer of 265 Fifth avenue, that John N. Willys, an automobile manufacturer of Toledo, Ohio, has bought a Franch Heir. The painting is a portrait of Joseph Coymans.

It is understood that Mr. Willys paid about $15,000 for the picture, which hangs in the Toledo Museum of Art. The Franch Heir hangs next to it.

The picture is a half-length, turned three-quarters to the spectator. Coymans wears a large broad brimmed hat and a broad white collar. He is dressed in a black figured velvet cloak and his left hand is half gloved.
